

JONES' PENALTY AIMED AT COMMERCIAL CASES
BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1929 by Post Pub. Co.

Washington — Instructions to the federal district attorneys to select for tests under the Jones law only "strong cases involving commercialism" has a double significance.

First, it means that the federal government is not going to risk a series of jury trials and acquittals on admittedly weak cases and, second, it is taking note of an aroused public sentiment in wet centers which thus far has failed to distinguish clearly between the efforts of the federal government to get the bootleggers and gangsters guilty of felonies and prosecution of minor offenses.

The department of justice in asking federal attorneys to use discretion in abandoning the Jones law but is using it for that which it was originally intended—the commercial sale of the liquor traffic. Bootleggers heretofore have paid fines and been released as a part of the expense of doing business.

Conspiracy statutes were difficult to handle. And the courts have been congested with both major and minor offenses. The move is aimed to prevent congestion and to concentrate the attention of juries on those who actually make a business of violating the law.

CHALLENGE TO LAWYERS

The federal government is really issuing a challenge to those lawyers in New York and elsewhere who have announced their intention of defending persons charged with violation of the Jones law. Would those same lawyers undertake to defend bootleggers and gangsters against the severity of the Jones law? That is the question for the moment and when the full effect of the Jones law is thoroughly understood there will be time enough in the judgment of officials here to appeal to public sentiment to handle persons who encourage violation of the law by patronizing those who make a business of selling liquor.

Offenses for possessing liquor, violation of the terms of a permit and transportation will not for the present be brought under the Jones law to court so that much of the discussion for the time being, of the far flung effect of the new statute has been brushed aside as premature. Ultimately, however, if the Jones law is successful in scaring the bootleggers and those whom they employ in the process of distribution it may be expected that supplementary instructions to federal attorneys will be issued in the line of making the enforcement policy of the administration gradually more effective.

For the next year or so, however, the drive will be against the so-called commercial cases.

STATE PHARMACOLOGIST
SUCCUMBS IN MARYLAND

Madison —(AP)—Dr. E. S. Loevenhart, University of Wisconsin pharmacologist, died this morning in John Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md., from effects of an operation according to word received here.

Dr. Loevenhart, who was chairman of the department, was 50 years old and had been in Baltimore for three weeks receiving treatment for an illness from which he had suffered three months.

He earned national recognition for compounding drugs being used in Africa by Warren K. Stratman, Thomas, University of Wisconsin scientist, who is fighting sleeping sickness. Dr. Loevenhart also developed with Dr. William Lorenz treatment for bringing insane persons from a catatonic state to brief normality, which was demonstrated here successfully last fall.

HUNT MESSENGER BOY
AS MONEY DISAPPEARS

Milwaukee —(AP)—Police today were searching for a 16-year-old messenger boy employed by the Wald Investment company for questioning about the disappearance of $1,450 of the firm's money.

The messenger, firm officials said, had made many trips to the bank to deposit money and on each occasion had returned with the deposit book with the correct amount noted in the margin and the initials of the receiving teller noted.

A comparison between the handwriting in the deposit book and the handwriting of the messenger revealed a striking similarity.

SCHACHT GOES BACK HOME TO DISCUSS DEBT

Will Spend Sunday in Berlin
and Return for Monday's Parley

Paris —(AP)—The reparations deadlock between the allied creditor powers and Germany took a quick turn today with the departure of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, leading German expert, for Berlin.

Dr. Schacht planned to spend Sunday in Berlin and then to return to Paris for Monday's full session of the commission.

The Germans were understood to be willing to discuss the reparations offer slightly, but they were frank to intimate that they saw no real hope of the present conference reaching an accord.

Dr. Schacht has been talking with Owen D. Young and the allied delegates at informal conferences on the situation, at the same time exploring the possibility of a ten year agreement. He appeared at the Hotel George V, this morning and went into conference with Mr. Young, Thomas W. Lamont and two other reparations experts. He looked very grave and tired.

GERMANS SOFTENED

The world-wide blame upon the Germans for wrecking the conference, as reported in the press, or the Berlin cabinet's reported disapproval today seemed to have softened the German firmness. The delegation, however, still asserted that it was composed of "independent experts." They were neither taking nor asking the cabinet's instruction, they said, and were seeking only solutions which they, as experts and as Germans, could approve.

Any compromise much above their figures of 37 annuities of 1,650,000,000 (about $296,000,000), the Germans asserted, could be made only for political reasons and would have to be made by the home politicians and not by them, for, they repeated, they are financial experts and are determined to promise only what can be done.

DEPEND ON CONFABS

In any case, the Germans intimated, they were thoroughly tired of discussing vital matters in large committees and declared that their only hope of progress lay in private conversations such as Dr. Schacht was now engaged in.

Nothing was known of how much higher the Germans would go if an accord seemed even remotely possible.

While the hope that the conference might result in a reopening of the negotiations existed, it was felt that it was more likely the discussions would turn toward consideration of how the reparations committee shall announce termination of its work.

It was stated that at the outset the conversations of the allied and American experts showed a disposition to make it as easy as possible for Dr. Schacht. It was necessary, however, to find some way to report to the governments the failure of the committee to execute its mission fully and it seems likely this afternoon that the committee would simply refer the whole question back to the various governments involved.

MYSTERY AIRPLANE
REPORTED BY SHIP

London —(AP)—A British trawler fishing about 250 miles west of the Outer Hebrides, or 300 miles west of the western Scotch coast, reported an airplane passed over it early today, flying eastward. The identity of the plane was a mystery here.

The radio message was received by the Malin Head station in Ireland from the trawler Shackelford at 8:23 A. M. It said "Airplane bound east passed here this morning at five o'clock, position is 53.10 north and 14.20 west."

There was no knowledge here of any transatlantic flight in progress and the public was left guessing what the plane might be doing so far out in the Atlantic as to be beyond the limit of an ordinary trial flight.

At the air ministry it was stated: "We have no knowledge of any flight over the Atlantic. Neither have we received any news."

MAN HELD FOR BREAKING
ACT ON COMPENSATION

Green Bay —(AP)—Charged with violating section 309 of the World War Veterans' Compensation act, Dell Harper, 32, was bound over to federal court after a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner John F. Watermelon here Friday.

He was committed to the Milwaukee jail in default of $500 bond.

The section under which he was arrested prohibits any person from receiving pay for services to former soldiers and sailors in assisting them to obtain adjusted compensation insurance policies, or loans on those policies.

Harper, it is charged, advertised that he would assist former service men and negotiated one loan of $44, of which the applicant received but $30.

Mexican Wounded Nursed
By Three American Women

Tucson, Ariz. —(AP)—Three American women were hailed today as the heroines of the battle of Sasabe (Mesquite) Sonora in which about 20 Mexican rebels were killed and wounded in an unsuccessful attempt to repulse an attack by 150 federal soldiers.

The women, Mrs. Arthur Hargrave, wife of the former president of the Kansas City, Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. A. Hardy, wife of a San Francisco, Ariz., physician, and Mrs. James H. Jones, a guest of Mrs. Hardy's, crossed the border into Sasabe after the battle yesterday and attended and cheered the wounded fighters.

Eighteen of the rebels, commanded by Lieut. Encarnacion Rojas, fled to American soil to escape capture by the federals and were held for internment. The rebels said between 30 and 40 of their comrades had been taken prisoners by the loyal troops.

The fight began at dawn, when the federals advanced upon 30 rebels entrenched at Sasabe. In two hours the town was in federal hands.

Federal accounts of the casualties and captured varied somewhat from those of the rebels. Loyal soldiers said eight rebels had been killed and ten wounded as against two federal dead and five wounded. The federals said they had captured six rebels and had taken 26 horses, one truck, seven rifles and 3,000 rounds of ammunition.

AROSE FROM SICK BED

Kansas City —(AP)—Mrs. Arthur Hargrave of Kansas City, who arose from her sick bed at Hacienda de la Osa, her picturesque Arizona border ranch, to aid the Mexican soldiers wounded in the battle of Sasabe, according to Mr. Hargrave who said she had been under the care of a nurse for the last two weeks.

Mr. Hargrave planned to leave in his airplane today for the hacienda which is only a mile from the scene of yesterday's Mexican battle and 70 miles from Tucson.

Russ Peeved
When Barred
From Floor

Geneva —(AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, soviet vice-commissioner for foreign affairs, received another setback in the preparatory disarmament conference today and it made him very angry. He did not immediately fulfill expectations of some that he would leave the conference, however.

Early in today's meeting the question of publicity for armaments, representing the German project, was disposed of by the disarmament commission by tabling it for reference to a sub-committee or later discussion in connection with limitation of effectives.

Shortly after the action was taken M. Litvinoff arose and demanded the right of speech.

"On what subject?" Jonkhoe, London, the president of the conference asked.

"I want to speak on procedure and on the question of publicity," Litvinoff replied.

M. Litvinoff announced they had already begun the discussion of chemical warfare and that it would be necessary to get the permission of the commission.

"Well," rejoined the Russian, very stiffly, "if I must get the permission of the commission every time I want to speak, then I won't speak." He sat down amid embarrassing silence.

PROBE FOLLOWS CRASH
OF TWO NAVAL PLANES

San Diego, Cal. —(AP)—An airplane crash in the air, which sent the naval officers and one enlisted man to spectacular deaths, was the subject of an inquiry by a naval board here today.

The planes, both from the U. S. S. Lexington, collided at an altitude of 600 feet yesterday upon their return from a gunnery practice detail. One ship was piloted by Lieut. William K. Patterson, a native of Pennsylvania, who was accompanied by H. H. Brown, first class radio man of Billings, Mont. The other plane carried Ensigns Herbert Bassett, Jr., McComb, Ill., and Harold E. Shuman, who entered Annapolis from Massachusetts.

The ill-fated ships fell side by side into shallow water covering a mud flat. The three officers were killed instantly. Brown, who apparently had been thrown clear as the wreckage fell, died in an ambulance on the way to the naval hospital.

GOVERNOR GRANTS 1ST
PARDON OF HIS REGIME

Madison —(AP)—Governor Walter J. Kohler granted his first pardon to Samuel G. Hurst of Buffalo-co on Friday. Hurst was sentenced to a fine of $500 or six months in jail on a charge of larceny. Sixteen other pardons were denied.

At the same time Governor Kohler restored civil rights to two persons whose terms had expired. They are: Ralph Knox, Douglas-co., convicted of taking an automobile, and Joseph A. Grosse, Jefferson-co., convicted of forgery.

DEBENTURE TO

SENATE PLAN

Will Be Included Despite Hoover or Others, Chairman McNary Says

Washington —(AP)—Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee, announced today the committee definitely had decided to incorporate the export debenture plan in the farm bill to be introduced Monday, irrespective of whether President Hoover or other administrations officials definitely declared against the proposal.

The chairman's announcement was made almost simultaneously with a call at the White House by Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, which is the sponsor of the debenture proposition. Taber conferred with President Hoover for nearly an hour.

The chief executive authorized no statement concerning the meeting and all Mr. Taber would say was that he expected "A good farm relief law before July 4."

SENATE ADJOURNS

The house side of the capital had a monopoly today on the formal activities of the special session of congress. The senate was still in adjournment and no formal committee meetings had been called.

With farm relief likely to remain the business before the house for the first half of next week, the house ways and means committee is taking more time than it originally allotted itself to complete the draft of its tariff revision bill. Republican members of the committee have been meeting daily in executive session whipping the measure into shape and are expected to have it ready for consideration as soon as the farm relief bill is out of the way.

WANT HOOVER VIEW

Administration officials had their ears attuned today for a reaction to the appeal of President Hoover to the farm organizations to compose their differences over measures of farm relief and present a solid front during congressional consideration of such legislation.

Since the debenture plan of the National Grange now is the chief point at issue between the agricultural organizations there was a general opinion here that Mr. Hoover had the differences over that question.

OUTBOARD MOTOR RACE
IS WON BY BOSTONIAN

New York —(AP)—Jacob Dunchell of Boston, won the Albany to New York outboard motor boat race today, bucking the old record by nearly an hour. His unofficial time for the distance of 136 miles was 3 hours 26 minutes.

Dunchell set the pace most of the way for a big field of the small craft. He passed the half way mark at Poughkeepsie at 7:55 a. m., and reached the finish at the Colonial Yacht club, 132nd st., at shortly after 11 o'clock.

J. Herbol of Wilmington, Del., finished in second place. The previous record was 4:27.30 made last year by Earl D. Waldron of Locust Valley, L. I.

EXPECTS TO SETTLE

Elizabethton, Tenn. —(AP)—Although company officials maintained silence, Charles G. Wood, federal labor conciliator, carried on today with his plans to bring about a settlement of the strike of 5,000 employees of the American Bemberg and Glanzstoff Rayon plants.

Conferences with Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America and other labor leaders including Paul Ayman, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, contributed to his hopes for an early settlement.

New York

New York —(AP)—Four workmen were killed and 12 were injured today by steel girders falling from the eleventh floor of the new Western Union building at Thomas-st and W. Broadway. Four men were arrested on a charge of criminal negligence.

New York —(AP)—Several steel girders fell today from the eleventh floor of the Western Union building under construction at Thomas-st and W. Broadway, killed at least four workmen on a scaffolding at the eighth floor and buried at least five more in wreckage at the street level. The girders were being hoisted on a derrick when the boom broke and let them crash down through the building, breaking through steel framework and new masonry and shattering the front of buildings across the street.

The new building is in the commission house district of the lower west side, crowded with trucks through narrow cobble streets, and the neighborhood was thrown into panic by the accident. Police reserves were called out to handle the crowds as rescue crews and repair gangs set to work.

AGED OAKFIELD MAN IS FREED AFTER 21 YEARS

Fond du Lac —(AP)—Grant Poole, aged Oakfield farmer who shot and killed Mrs. Jenny Orvis in the Oakfield Methodist church 21 years ago today was a free man and ordered released from the Northern State hospital.

The circuit court today ordered the release following testimony of Dr. Adin Sherman of the Northern hospital and other physicians that Poole was sane. Poole was committed to the institution soon after the fatal shooting and did not stand trial.

Last fall he was released and brought into court on the old murder warrant but was recommitted to the hospital after the state and defense attorneys agreed to permit him to plead not guilty by reason of insanity.

PUBLIC APATHY BLAMED FOR CROOKS AT POLLS

Milwaukee —(AP)—"Public apathy is to blame for much of the crookedness at the polls," Judge Edmund K. Jarocki of Chicago, told the Milwaukee County of Women Voters here Friday.

"Some workers at the polls are much intense citizens that they would vote 10 times for each candidate if they had the chance," he said. "We've got to keep an eye on them."

Leviathan Serves Liquor
To Passengers On Return

Southampton, England —(AP)—The giant liner Leviathan left for New York this morning with a stock of liquor aboard for sale to passengers. Ship's officers refused to discuss the quantity of liquor put aboard. The loading was done with the utmost secrecy, officials at the pier refusing to give any information.

It was learned, however, the supply had been estimated so as to leave little left over when the liner reaches the 12-mile limit where what is left will be thrown overboard.

The Leviathan carried 247 first class passengers and expected to pick up an equal number at Cherbourg.

Line officials said the booking was normal and about the same as last year.

It was the first time since prohibition the giant vessel, one of the

Brother Of
Kaiser Dies
In Germany

Prince Henry of Prussia
Succumbs at His Estate at Hennelsmark

Hennelsmark, Germany —(AP)—Prince Henry of Prussia, only brother of the former Kaiser, died here today of pneumonia.

Prince Henry, who was widely known in the United States for his visit there in 1902 to attend the launching and christening of his brother's yacht, "Meteor," at Jersey City, was 68 years old and had been in poor health for several years.

The Associated Press was informed by a trustworthy source early this year that Prince Henry was afflicted with the same malady with which his father, the late Emperor Frederick III was stricken, namely cancer of the larynx. The illness was reported to be in an advanced stage.

He devoted his active life to the military in the naval service. He enlisted in the navy upon completing his education in 1877. Advancing rapidly through the various commissioned grades, he attained the rank of admiral in 1906 and was made chief of the active high seas fleet. Three years later, in September, he retired from that command and became inspector-general of the navy with the rank of grand admiral.

During the World war Prince Henry confined himself to the role of observer on various battle fronts. After the revolution in Germany he retired to his estate at Hennelsmark, near Kiel, from which he emerged only occasionally.

The prince never played much of a role politically. However, he was dispatched at various times on important missions of a political nature but always returned closely guarded by instructions from his brother so that he had no opinion of his own to register.

His first assignment of this sort was in 1896, when he represented his imperial brother at the coronation at Moscow of Nicholas II of Russia. Six years later, in February, 1902 the prince visited the United States, which has been regarded as the most important diplomatic missions of his career.

Delegated by his brother to attend the launching and christening of the

Charles W. Lloyd and Two Others Are Arrested in Los Angeles

Los Angeles —(AP)—The arrest of Charles W. Lloyd, 32, said to be wanted in Chicago in connection with the St. Valentine's day massacre in which seven men were lined up and shot to death, was disclosed here early today.

Lloyd was held on charges of suspicion of murder and violation of the state prohibition law. Arrested with him yesterday were Ben Milrod, 29, also held on suspicion of murder charges, and Jack Watson, 39, for alleged violation of the state dry law.

Police said Lloyd had been identified by a photograph from Chicago as a man wanted on a federal warrant in connection with the St. Valentine's day killings. Police said he had a Chicago detective badge in his possession.

NOT GUILTY IN KIDNAP CASE,
JURORS RULE

Trial on Another Count Set for Tuesday but Case
May Be Dropped

Chicago —(AP)—A verdict of acquittal was returned early today by the jury sitting in the trial of 13 Eller henchmen charged with participation in the terrorism in the 29th ward primary elections last April.

The 13 Eller henchmen were tried for kidnaping an election worker of an opposing faction. Scores of poll watchers and election workers on election day testified during the trial that they had been mistreated, beaten, and even kidnaped by men whom they classified as Eller workers.

Several told of being taken to a "jail" near the home of City Collector Morris Eller, ward "boss" in the 29th and held until late that night. The jury went out late yesterday.

Trial on another indictment against the 13, charging assault and kidnaping of a poll watcher on primary election day has been set for next Tuesday. However, in the light of failure to obtain jail sentences in two previous trials, state prosecutors indicated that they may not proceed further in the case.

Before the primary election day polls closed last April reports poured in that election workers had been forced out of polling places.

The chairman of the all-party "League of Voters" was reached when Charles C. Grady, Negro, opponent of the Eller faction forward committee-man was shot down with a shotgun as he and a friend fled from a gang of hoodlums. It was the second shooting of the day, another Negro election worker having been severely wounded that morning.

An indignant citizenry demanded a rigid investigation into 20th ward conditions. Robert E. Crowe, then state's attorney, declined to act, and a special grand jury and special prosecutors were demanded. Two hundred thousand dollars were raised by popular subscription in a few days after Attorney General Oscar E. Christman had authorized the special juries and prosecutors.

Starting in June, seven consecutive special grand juries were called. Frank J. Luesch headed the staff of special prosecutors, with Edwin J. Huber and David D. Stansbury, who were appointed as special attorneys general, his aids.

As a result of a prodigious volume of testimony, more than 100 indictments were returned in all. Both the Ellers—Morris Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller—were among those indicted.

Sixteen Eller henchmen were tried together in October and November the trial lasting more than a month. The Ellers obtained separate trials, which have not yet taken place, and another of the original 19 indicted has never been apprehended.

In the first trial, all the 16 defendants were convicted after scores of witnesses had identified them in one way or another with the terrorism.

GREEN BAY POLICE CHIEF IS CLEARED OF CHARGES

Green Bay —(AP)—Charges involving the neglect of duty in enforcing the liquor law here were dismissed against Thomas H. Hawley, veteran police chief, at a public hearing held in the council chamber by the police and fire commission Friday night.

The commission found that the evidence did not sustain the charge which were made by certain citizens as an aftermath of federal liquor raids here last fall when 43 places were padlocked. Criticism was based on the idea that as federal men made a "clean-up" the police chief was not on the job.

The Rev. Edwin Simpson, Baptist pastor, who criticized the police department before his congregation and was active in obtaining signers for a petition to bring about the hearing, was not present at the hearing. It was reported he had been called to Canada on the death of a brother.

Ten persons had signed the petition, eight of whom attended the hearing and said they had never made a complaint against the chief of police.

Council Still Undecided About Lawrence-St Fill

AWAIT VIEW OF PARK BOARD ON HOLDING WALL

Part of Jones Park Will Be Lost if Retaining Wall Isn't Built

The common council still is undecided whether to build a retaining wall on the south side of the W. Lawrence-st bridge to hold back the dirt which is being dumped into the ravine under the bridge.

In addition to the economical question involved, the council prefers to get the park board's opinion before making a final decision. The recommendation of the park board, it is believed, will go a long way toward influencing the council's stand.

If a retaining wall is constructed there, the fill-in naturally will not extend out into Jones park as far as it will if no wall is put up.

The city is filling in the ravine to eliminate the need for a new bridge on Lawrence-st. The bridge has practically outlived its usefulness, and if the fill had not been made, a new bridge would have been required in a few years.

WON'T NEED BRIDGE
But instead of building a new bridge, the council decided to fill in the ravine with dirt dug out of the subway, site on E. Wisconsin-ave, raze the bridge and construct the street directly over the fill-in. It is expected the dirt will have settled sufficiently by next year to permit traffic over it.

A similar plan is in the process of completion on the north side of the bridge. Dirt and rubbish is being dumped into the hole between the end of S. Superior-st and the bridge and the Superior-st extension to W. Lawrence-st probably will be completed by fall.

Approximately 15,000 cubic yards of earth have been dumped under the bridge thus far. It is estimated that somewhat more than 31,000 cubic yards will be taken out of the subway site, all of which will be used to fill in the Lawrence-st ravine, so there still is more than 16,000 cubic yards available.

L. L. Schindler, city engineer, has prepared figures for the council showing the approximate cost of a retaining wall. A wall 10 feet high and 150 feet long would cost approximately $5,000, the engineer estimated. A wall of this height would result in a saving of about 2,100 square feet of Jones park, representing a cost of $2.30 a square foot.

A wall 15 feet in height and 150 feet long would cost approximately $3,350 and would save 3,150 square feet for the park. In this case the cost of each square foot saved would be about $2.65, the engineer pointed out.

"On this basis, a city lot, which measures 60 by 120 feet, would cost $15,550 in the first case and $13,080 in the second," the city engineer said.

AWAIT BOARD PLANS
But it is believed that in the final analysis, the council will base its decision on the wall on the plans the park board may have for the improvement of Jones park. The park board, it is pointed out, has the outlines of a natural amphitheatre and if the board intends to build a "bow" or amphitheatre there, a wall on the north side would ruin the general effect.

Without the wall, the ground on the north side would slope down to the park just as it does on the east and west sides, practically completing the general layout of the "bow." If any more room is needed, the south side of the park could be improved, according to opponents of the retaining wall.

Those in favor of the wall construction point out that the fill-in will extend out into the park at least 50 feet, or to a distance approximately on a line with the end of the stairway leading down into the park on the northwest corner. This would be taking away too much, they contend.

WISCONSIN WEATHER
Fair in northwest; mostly cloudy in east and south portion tonight and Sunday; probably rain in south-east and east portion; not much change in temperature.

GENERAL WEATHER
A deep "low," with its center over Oklahoma, overrides the southern states and it has caused precipitation in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the lake region, with heavy rains in northern Illinois, Iowa, Oklahoma and Kansas. It is being followed by a high pressure area in the northwest, which will probably bring fair weather to the western portion of this district Sunday.

BUILDING PERMITS

Five building permits were issued Friday by John N. Welland, building inspector. They were granted to Raymond Ulman, garage and basement under residence at 1621 W. Rogers-ave, cost $600; Louis Lang, garage at 527 W. Elmhurst-st, cost $225; Mrs. Kate Leith, garage at 1021 N. Morrison-st, cost $200; William H. Hume, residence at 1513 N. Drew-st, cost $5,000; Reuben Paul, residence, 1728 N. Clark-st, cost $3,000.

Dump Earth From Subway Under Lawrence-St Bridge

The top picture shows the progress which has been made in filling in the ravine under the Lawrence-st bridge. The dirt is just beginning to extend into Jones park. Hundreds of more loads will be dumped there before the project is completed. The picture at the bottom shows where the dirt came from. It is the subway site on E. Wisconsin-ave. The picture, which was taken on the west side of the railroad tracks, shows the depth of the hole. Although water can be seen in the bottom of the pit, the ground dried up sufficiently since the picture was taken to permit resumption of work.

17 MEMBERS JOIN NEW 4-H CLUB ORGANIZATION

Seventeen boys and girls of the Pleasant Valley and Sunny Valley high schools in this town of Chicago joined a 4-H club which was organized at a meeting at the former school Friday afternoon. Gus Sell, county agricultural agent, attended the gathering. William Yahnkman is to be the leader. Seven of the members are from the Sunny Valley school and the other 10 are from Pleasant Valley school. It is expected that several other members will join the club at the next meeting at which officers will be elected. This is one of the largest groups organized this year, according to Mr. Sell.

Washington, (AP)—The state department was advised today that France's instrument of ratification of the Kellogg treaty to renounce war has reached Washington and will be deposited Monday in the archives of the American government.

Elihu Root of the Standard Manufacturing company was in Chicago Friday.

NO CIVIL WAR VETS PRESENT AS MEMORIAL DAY COMMITTEE MEETS

For the first time since institution of Memorial day, Civil war veterans are not taking part in preparations to observe the day. It was indicated Friday night when members of the permanent Memorial day committee met at the city hall. John Hanchett, who died several weeks ago, was the last G. A. R. veteran taking active part in program affairs. Reports of committees which held over from last year were heard and plans made for another meeting on May 8 at Pythian hall. Major Frederick W. Hoffman, of the 1st Battalion, 127th Infantry, will be marshal of the day and arrange the parade. Special effort will be made to have more school children take part in the program. E. J. Rohan, superintendent of city schools, pledged support of his department in getting more children out.

CHARGE SALESMAN WAS DISORDERLY AT HOTEL

Guy A. Wadston, 1429 N. Clark-st, Chicago, a salesman, pleaded guilty in municipal court Saturday morning of disorderly conduct and preliminary hearing of the case was set for next Wednesday morning by Judge Theodore Berg. Wadston, with Roland Koletzke, 330 N. Atlantic-st, were arrested in a room at a local hotel Friday evening by Sergeant Matthew McGinnis. Koletzke was booked on a charge of drunkenness and pleaded guilty in court Saturday morning. When he was unable to pay a $10 fine he was sent to the county jail for five days.

FAIR AND WARMER WEATHER ON MENU

Fair and warmer is on the menu for this vicinity for the next 24 hours, according to the weatherman.

Cloudy weather prevailed throughout the middle west Saturday morning and winds were shifting in the northeast. At 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered 39 degrees above zero and at noon the thermometer stood at 32 degrees above zero.

DEPUTIES MAKE 2 RAIDS BUT FIND NO EVIDENCE

A squad of deputy sheriffs sent out Friday to raid two soft drink parlors in Black Creek and Shiocton, returned empty handed, according to Sheriff Fred W. Giese. The deputies raided the places of Art Wachlin in Black Creek and Dick Cassar in Shiocton. No evidences of illicit liquor were found in either place. The raids were made on complaints.

MAYOR RULE VETOES COUNCIL'S ACTION ON ZUELKE LEASE

Believes Move Would Set Dangerous Precedent—Wants More Consideration

Mayor A. C. Rule Saturday morning filed with Carl J. Becker, city clerk his veto to the action taken by the common council last Wednesday evening leasing the top floor of the proposed Irving Zuelke building on the southwest corner of College-ave and S. Oneida-st.

He based his veto upon the belief that the council did not give the matter proper consideration, and that the public was not granted an opportunity to express its view. That the veto stands a poor chance of being sustained, however, is indicated by the council's vote on the lease, 11 of the 12 aldermen approving the action. Alderman Mike Steinhauer, first ward, who called for an aye and nay vote, was the only one to oppose the measure.

Besides Alderman Steinhauer, it will be necessary to line up three more aldermen to approve the mayor's action if the veto is to be sustained. Nine votes, or two thirds of the council, is required to override a veto.

The vote read: "To the City Clerk: "In the council proceedings of April 17, 1929, on page 4, paragraph 1 of the report of the committee of the whole, I find the following: That the proposal of Irving Zuelke, as submitted, be accepted and that the city attorney be instructed to prepare a lease in accordance with said proposal."

"Alderman Steinhauer called for an aye and nay vote on the above, all aldermen voting aye except Alderman Steinhauer, who voted nay. "I do not think that the proper consideration was given this paragraph. Neither do I feel that time enough was spent to give people who have built buildings of this kind or people who may contemplate building in the future time enough to express their views in regard to this paragraph, and I am therefore filing my veto to this resolution, feeling that this will give these property holders time to express their views to the council before the vote is taken to override this veto."

"Respectfully submitted, Mayor A. C. Rule."

WOULD RUN 5 YEARS

The lease to be drawn up by the city attorney would run for five years, and the annual rental would amount to the difference in taxes Mr. Zuelke paid on his former building destroyed by fire a year ago last January and the taxes on the new structure.

"If the city entered into this lease with Mr. Zuelke, it would be setting a precedent which would be sure to lead us into difficulty in the future," Mayor Rule said. "Should Mr. Zuelke be given this aid, every other builder who would contemplate erecting a structure of similar proportions in years to come would expect help from the city, and it is apparent that the city would hardly be in a position to answer such demands."

"I regret taking any steps which may make it more difficult for Mr. Zuelke to proceed with his plans, as the building will without a doubt be a credit to the city, but I feel that the council did not act wisely and that the matter should be given further consideration. If the council overrides my veto, I shall be satisfied, as I will believe that I have done my duty."

The council planned to offer the

IZAAK WALTON'S NAME WARD FOR PRESIDENT

Dr. Henry Baldwin Ward of Urbana, Ill. Friday night was nominated for reelection as president of the Izaak Walton League of America, at the seventh annual convention banquet at Hotel Stevens, according to word received here. E. J. Murphy is representing the local chapter at the convention, which opened Wednesday afternoon.

Dean Shaler Matthews of the University of Chicago was the principal speaker at the banquet. He spoke on Conservation in the Future. A movement to conserve wild life of every form upon a national scale was launched Friday with the appointment of a committee, including representatives of 20 conservationists.

Milwaukee is waging a hot campaign to secure the convention for 1930. Other contenders for the 1930 conclave are West Palm Beach, Fla., and Detroit.

MOODY TO SPEAK AT LIONS MEET

Gilbert Moody, Weyauwega, will talk on Diamond Mining in Australia at the regular meeting of the Lions club at Conway hotel Monday noon. A dinner will precede the program. Regular business matters also will be discussed.

KAUKAUNA RESIDENT JAILED FOR VAGRANCY

Peter Jadule, Kaukauna, was sent to the county jail for 10 days by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Saturday morning when he pleaded guilty of vagrancy. He was arrested Saturday by R. H. McCarty, chief of police, who charged Jadule had not worked for some time.

hall on the top floor for community purposes.

Following the council's action last Wednesday, Mr. Zuelke announced he hoped to start construction in from six to eight weeks. He said he intended to carry out his original plan of putting up a 10-story building, the first two floors of which would be occupied by stores and shops and the next seven floors by offices.

ROAD CREWS TO START FENCE, POST PAINTING

A crew of county highway workers will start next week to repaint fences, posts, and markers on county highways, according to Frank Appleton, highway commissioner. The crew also will replace all posts broken during the past winter. Another crew will gather snow fence which was piled along the roadside when it was taken down about a month ago. Mr. Appleton plans to order a carload of asphalt to be used in filling cracks and broken portions of pavements and two crews will be set at this work within the next few weeks. Last year only one crew took care of the work.

LOCAL MAN PAYS FINE FOR DRIVING TOO FAST

Jack Greenwood, 34 Sherman-pl, was fined $1 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Saturday morning when he pleaded guilty of speeding. He was arrested Friday evening on E. College-ave by Officer Gus Hersckorn for traveling 34 miles an hour.

BEG PARDON

A news item in the Thursday evening issue of the Post-Crescent stated that the A. J. Bauer Plumbing shop had been moved to the new George Thoms building on E. College-ave. The Bauer plumbing company has not moved.

COUNTY ROADS ARE IN FAIR CONDITION

Unless Rain Interferes, Motorists May Use All Highways Without Fear

"Unless weather conditions interfere, Outagamie-co motorists may travel on practically every road in the county without fear of becoming mired, according to Frank Appleton, highway commissioner."

Except for two stretches of highway, which are closed because flood waters are running over them, every road was open to traffic Saturday. The two stretches that are closed are a section of county trunk S at Stephenville and a section of M1 north of Hortonville.

Mr. Appleton reported that such good progress is being made with roadwork that highway crews this week started removing some of the metal cuts which had been placed across especially bad sink holes in the roads. A few washouts were reported Saturday morning but these were to be taken care of at once.

If there should be rain Saturday or Sunday it is possible that some roads will become so muddy that they will be hard to travel on.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS
DO NOT APPEAR TO WORRY WALL STREET

International Bankers, However, Express Concern Over Reparations

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
(Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press.)
Wall Street, New York—Financial Review and Outlook—

The deep concern expressed by international bankers Friday over the reparations crisis in Paris was in sharp contrast with the attitude of speculative Wall Street which ignored foreign affairs and bid up stocks on the basis of what it regarded as improving domestic money market conditions.

The break-up in Paris came unexpectedly after the market closed Friday. It was followed by a tragic sequel in the death of Lord Revelstoke, who, with the American delegates, Owen D. Young, J. P. Morgan and Thomas M. Lamont, had done most to try and bring the creditor and debtor nations to an agreement. The feeling here was best expressed by a banker who has spent some time in Europe recently studying the credit and economic conditions bearing on the reparations debt and who said:

"The serious effect of the failure of Germany to accept the terms of the Allies will be on the moral of continental Europe. A great forward movement in industry and in foreign trade had been expected in the event of the debt settlement. Now this seems to have been indefinitely postponed. German bankers and industrialists who lose their initiative and other countries that trade with Germany will stand off and mark time until terms are finally arranged. The effect will be similar to that in this country among business men during a serious presidential campaign."

BERLIN MARKET WORRIED
The immediate result of the breakdown was a demoralized market in Berlin. In German marks which had the most severe decline since German currency was stabilized in November 1923. German bank and industrial stocks were off considerably. Hence, there was, however, a small decline in German dollar obligations of which American investors hold approximately $1,750,000,000. Total European investments in dollar bonds are estimated at approximately $4,500,000,000.

One effect of the failure of Germany to make reasonable concessions to the offer of the allies will be to close the doors tightly against all further German borrowing in this country.

In this connection portions of the special circular issued Friday by the National City bank on the domestic credit situation and written when it seemed likely there would be a favorable outcome of the Paris conference are most significant. One paragraph reads as follows: "Prompt correction (of the money situation) is essential to the end that a bond market be developed through which municipal and state projects, improvements and private building can be financed and other construction work obtain funds to go forward and above all that a favorable market be created here for foreign security issues." The National City company has been one of the most active distributors of European loans in the last four years.

EXPORT TRADE THREATENED
Another reference is to the fact that foreign countries are paying $200,000,000 annually to the United States on war debts and at the same time their liquid funds are being drawn away into the American speculative market. Discussing this phase the National City bank circular says: "While at the same time we are trying to pay for our exports to them over imports from them a condition is developing where our export trade is seriously threatened. Unless this situation is corrected without delay and a means found whereby the purchasing power of foreign markets is restored, it will be impossible to export the surplus of our great staple agricultural products such as corn, wheat, cotton, meats, tobacco, etc."

Of the strongest reasons given for the refusal of the federal reserve board to raise the rediscount rate is that it might disturb the export trade of the country. This trade now faces the further handicap of an embargo on European securities.

How To Play Bridge

BY MILTON C. WORK

MR. WORK'S POINTERS
CONTRACT BRIDGE
"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks, under-tricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, etc. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing."

As a special service to our readers, Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

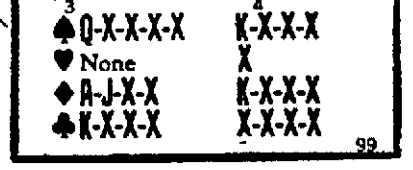

CONTRACT BRIDGE
Suppose that playing Contract Bridge, South (Dealer) starts by bidding one Spade, West passes, and North holds:

With No. 1, North should pass. Viewing the hand superficially, it will be noted that it would not take more than two or three tricks, possibly only one, not enough to jump a partner who, by bidding only one, has shown a holding of less than six probable tricks. Estimating the value of the hand with accuracy, we would count Ace of Hearts 5, King of Diamonds 3, Queen of Clubs 1, doubleton 1—total 10. The figure for a jump is 13. If, however, South had bid two Spades, North with the above hand would jump to three because a count of 8 is all that is needed for a two-to-three jump.

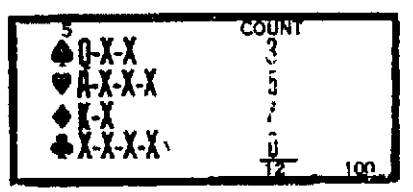

In No. 2, the Jack and Ten of Spades would count 1, Ace of Hearts 5, singleton in Hearts 4, King of Diamonds 3, and Queen of Diamonds 2.

(with a higher honor) 3, Queen of Clubs 1, total 17. Enough to jump South's one Spade to three. Two more North hands held after South's Spade bid.

Hand No. 3 would count 6 in Spades (3 for the Queen of partner's suit and 3 more for having a five-card suit), 8 for the blank in Hearts, 6 in Diamonds (Ace 5, Jack with higher honor 1), 3 in Clubs, total 23—two points more than enough to jump South's one Spade to four Spades.

No. 4 is not so strong. Its Spades would count the same 6 (King of partner's suit 4, four cards of partner's suit 2), its singleton Heart 4, and the King of Diamonds 3, total 13—enough to jump partner's one Spade to two, or his two Spades to four.

Hand No. 5 counts 12. It would be strong enough to jump partner's two Spades to four, but partner's one Spade should be passed at a love score. No chance of game, so why risk a set; but with any score, two Spades should be bid because there is a good chance of making two and a possible chance of making three.

WHOOPING COUGH
SPREADS IN CITY

43 Cases Are Reported by Health Authorities, Who Issue Warning

City health officials are concerning themselves with whooping cough.

Forty-three cases of this disease are known to exist in Appleton now, and the great majority of them have been reported this month, according to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer.

Although the disease is common at this time of year, health officers urge parents to report cases of illness among their children immediately. Likewise did they stress the importance of complying with quarantine regulations to help guard against the spread of the disease.

Cases must be reported to the local health officer within 24 hours after discovery by the attending physician, or responsible head of the family, if a physician is not employed. Homes with whooping cough patients are not permitted to leave the premises under any circumstances while the home is quarantined without a written permit from the health officer, according to Mr. Sanders. Well children in the family free from cough may go to school, but children in other families cannot enter or remain upon the quarantined premises, he pointed out.

The number of scarlet fever cases has decreased to 11, Mr. Sanders reported. No new cases have been discovered within the last week, and it is believed that this disease now is under control.

Playhouse Fire
The fire department was called out about 2:40 Saturday morning when a playhouse in the yard at the home of Louis Rankin, 132 N. Locust-st., caught fire. It is not known how the fire started. It was put out in a few minutes by the firemen and damage was only slight.

BISHOP LAWRENCE
TO SPEAK IN CITY

Son of Founder of Lawrence College Will Talk to Students Tuesday

Bishop William Lawrence of the Protestant Episcopal church, Boston, the son of Amos A. Lawrence, founder of the college, a grand-son of Samuel Appleton, founder of the city, will speak at Lawrence college convocation next Tuesday. Bishop Lawrence will be accompanied by his son, the Reverend William Appleton Lawrence, rector of the Grace Episcopal church, Providence, R. I., who combines in the third generation the two family names in honor of which the college and the city are named.

Bishop Lawrence is a figure of national importance in the clerical world and is well known for his many books. He has been awarded many degrees and has been honored by Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Cambridge, and Columbia. Lawrence conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him in 1897.

Among the books that he has published are the "Life of Amos A. Lawrence," "The American Cathedral," "Visions and Service," "Fifty Years," and "The Life of Roger Wolcott, Governor of Massachusetts."

The visit of Bishop Lawrence is of especial significance to Appleton and Lawrence college for Lawrence owes both its name and foundation to the foresight of his father, Amos Adams Lawrence. It was this institution that started the growth of the city in 1847. There were only five families located here. After the old Main Hall was completed there were three small neighborhoods in the vicinity. In 1849 Amos Lawrence encouraged them to consolidate and he named the little city "Appleton" after his father-in-law, Samuel Appleton, one of the benefactors of the community.

FRIENDS BLAMED IN
LAWYER'S SUICIDE

Man Facing Prosecution for Embezzlement Takes His Own Life

Philadelphia — (AP) — A statement credited to David Steinhart, fugitive New York lawyer, that friends advised him to commit suicide increased interests in today's inquest into his death.

Facing prosecution for embezzlement of $500,000 in bankruptcy cases, he drank poison yesterday while his wife and his attorney, Herman L. Maris of this city, sat in an adjoining room at a hotel and as Assistant United States Attorney George Shattuck of New York was on his way from the railroad station to take him into custody.

Steinhart, a trustee and receiver in bankruptcy, had consented to surrender. Several letters were found in his pocket and in one of them, addressed to his wife, he declared that suicide was the only alternative. A few days ago he told Maris that friends had advised him that suicide was the only way out of his difficulties.

Steinhart had been a fugitive since Jan. 8, when, it is charged, he defrauded a single client of $50,000. Search had been made for him throughout this country and Canada.

He came to Philadelphia last Sunday and a few days later called on Maris, a friend of many years, to discuss the charges against him. Maris said he went to New York and brought Mr. Steinhart here and that Steinhart had then agreed to return to New York and face it.

PICK BUSINESS STAFF OF COLLEGE COMEDY

The production and business staffs of the three act comedy, "Mr. Pim Passes By," by Milne, which will be presented at Lawrence Memorial chapel May 16, have been named, according to Miss Lucile Welty, director.

The business management will be handled by Albert L. Franzke, professor of public speaking, and Arthur Mueller and Robert Valentine, assisted by Jack Rudolph and Walter Piper. They will have charge of the stage management and scenery.

Miriam Russell will head the costume and property committee, assisted by Helen Kneebone, Margaret Mason, and Marion Jaeger, while Anna Marie Perschbacher will have charge of the publicity.

NEWS OF NEENAH AND MENASHA

SOCIETY

Y. W. C. A. SEEKS
$9,000 IN DRIVE
OPENING MONDAYCommittees Ready to Start
Raising Money for Year's Work

Neenah—The first annual Budget week of the Neenah-Menasha Young Women's Christian association will take place from April 22 to 28. The association is asking the community to subscribe $9,000 for its support for one year. If this goal is reached no further call for funds will be made this year.

Plans for Budget Week have been made by the finance committee of which Miss Clara Bloom is chairman and the campaign setup includes a group of committee chairmen. Mrs. Neale Spoor and Mrs. W. A. Brooks are general chairmen; Mrs. L. J. Pinkerton, chairman for initial gifts; Mrs. Clarence Schultz, chairwoman; Mrs. John Studley, hospitality; Mrs. Wilbur Sparks, publicity; and Mrs. John Best, church cooperation.

During the last week association representatives have been giving short talks before various church and club groups and on Sunday the work of the association will be presented in the churches. The initial gift committee, composed of men and women, is at work this week with the result that initial gifts are coming in in encouraging amounts. Monday noon seven women teams of the two cities will meet for luncheon at the Presbyterian church after which they will start out on a general solicitation campaign of the city. A gift will be given each day to the team securing the largest amount; a present from Floral Center greenhouse. Similar luncheons will be served each day with prominent speaker to start the teams on their trips. Team workers have chosen the names of their prospects from a list of 2,500 citizens of Neenah and Menasha.

The Y. W. C. A. grew out of the Young Women's club which was in existence here for many years. It affiliated with the national organization a few months ago, taking on more work and creating a demand for more funds with which to operate. The governing body is M. Edith Mitten, general secretary; Pearl Green, assistant secretary; S. D. Greenwood, president; Mrs. John Best, first vice president; Mrs. S. F. Shattuck, second vice president; Miss Jeanie Egan, secretary; Miss Mae Bell Gear, treasurer. Other members are Miss Helen Babcock, Mrs. H. K. Babcock, Mrs. M. E. Barnett, Mrs. J. N. Bergstrom, Miss Clara Bloom, Mrs. N. E. Brokaw, Mrs. John Chapman, Mrs. J. F. Gillingham, Mrs. R. V. Luther, Mrs. W. H. Miller, Mrs. L. E. O'Connor, Mrs. Alvin Tabeck, Mrs. Clarence Schultz, Mrs. Grace Sensenbrenner, Mrs. J. P. Shille, Mrs. Ruth Sparks, Mrs. Neale Spoor, Mrs. John Studley and Miss Louise Ulrich.

IS COMING UP AGAIN

Neenah—When the Winnebago board of supervisors meets Monday morning, the courthouse proposition again will be discussed. District Attorney Frank B. Keefe, who was a member of the committee which selected the Algoma-Blvd. site, predicted in an address before the Oshkosh Kiwanis club that there may be a resolution introduced to abandon the courthouse project altogether. It was Mr. Keefe's assertion that many of the supervisors have taken the attitude that public interest is not settled on what should be done.

The petition calling for a meeting to organize the board, was filed April 13 with George Manuel, county clerk. The petition bore signatures of 27 supervisors, among them being the five Neenah supervisors.

ORDER EXAMINATIONS
FOR GUARD OFFICERS

Neenah—Dan Herdt and Fred J. Miller have been notified to appear on the evening of April 25 before an examining board composed of Major Hoffman of the National Guard, Capt. James K. Campbell of the regular army, and Capt. Clyde Schroeder of the National Guard, for examinations for first and second lieutenants in the National Guards for which they have been recommended. The examination will be held at Appleton. In the letter recommending Capt. Carl Gerhardt, commander of Co. I to which Herdt and Miller were assigned, it was stated that Co. I had been cut down from a 67 membership to 65 and that the Headquarters company under command of Lieut. William Drahm is to have a maximum strength of 30 men.

TOWN OF NEENAH IN BASEBALL LEAGUE

Neenah—Baseball players living in town of Neenah have organized a team to play ball during the summer on a regulation diamond constructed just outside the west city limits on highway 41. The team will enter the league composed of Winnebago, Omro, Winchester, Rowdendale and Oshkosh. A meeting has been called for Monday evening at Omro where arrangements and schedules for the season will be made.

GREEN BAY MAN FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Neenah—Marvin Henning, Green Bay, paid a fine of $10 and costs Friday in Municipal court, Oshkosh, on a charge of reckless driving, preferred against him by Irving Stilt, Winnebago motor police. Henning was arrested Friday on highway 41 between Neenah and Oshkosh.

Neenah—The city may have to take legal action to decide ownership unless it grants quit claim deeds to owners of Lake Shore drive lots who claim right to lake frontage abutting their properties. Letters citing this manner of procedure were presented to the city council by F. E. Sensenbrenner, acting for a group of lake front property owners. The claim deed presented to the city by E. P. Sheery of Milwaukee, a few weeks ago, giving the city a strip of land along the lake shore between E. Wisconsin-ave and N. Park-ave, to be used as park purposes, interferes with their right and which they are asking straightened out. The request was given to city attorney George Kelly for investigation.

DE MOLAY BOYS ATTEND SUNDAY CHURCH SERVICE

The services will start at 10:30.

STORM WATER SEWER
PROGRAM OUTLINED
BY CITY COUNCILAldermen Hope to Relieve Flood Conditions in Sections of Neenah

Neenah—An extensive storm water sewer program is to be carried out here this year in an effort to relieve the city, especially the First ward, of damage from high water in the spring. In order to do this a new storm water sewer will be built the entire length of Columbus-ave. from Lake Butte des Morts, where the water will empty through an outlet to Elm-st., a distance of more than a mile and the present sanitary will be converted into a storm water sewer. Connecting with this sewer will be constructed pieces of sewer on Walnut, Elm-sts., Doty, Franklin and Washington-aves. New sanitary sewers are to be constructed on Third-ave, Elm-st., between Park and Division-sts., and on E. Columbia-ave. between First-st. and First-ave. Plans for these new sewers were approved at the Thursday evening council meeting which authorized bids to be received for the construction work.

The city has an extensive sewer program on the west end of that part of the city known as the Island where water from the Fox river this spring covered property to as great a depth as three and four feet. This program will necessitate raising so much of the property from five to six feet in order to get above the river level so that a sewer can be placed there. This is to be a very expensive program as not only will the properties have to be raised but streets and walks also will have to be raised accordingly. Many of the property owners were compelled to use boats to get from their homes to day last in some places a block away. Such a condition has existed there almost every spring when the river overflows its banks.

Neenah—The annual meeting of the Presbyterian church congregation will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening in the church lecture room. Election of officers, annual reports and other business will be considered. Elders are to be elected to succeed E. A. Severson, S. F. Shattuck and George Elvers, Deacons to serve from one to three years are to be elected at this time. The terms of Owen Jones, Gavin Young, Sr. and Frank W. Kellogg as trustees, also expire and successors will be elected.

Reports will be given by the session, treasurer, budget committee, deacons, Sunday school, Mothers' circle, Mission circle, music committee and the Young People's society.

Neenah—Wet grounds prevented the high school track squad from doing much training at Citizens' Athletic field last week, most of the practice having been conducted on the streets adjacent to the high school. Runners were given their daily sprint up E. Franklin-ave. and return, a distance of a mile. The high jumpers, vaulters and other events were practiced in the school yard. Hundreds of loads of school yard refuse were hauled to the field during the latter part of the week, and the grounds soon will be in good shape. The squad is entered in several track meets in May and much hard work will be required to get the men in shape.

Neenah—Mike Malout and M. J. Hren were fined $5 and costs Saturday morning in justice courts for violating the two-hour parking law on W. Wisconsin-ave. The arrests were made Friday afternoon following the city council's order to enforce the ordinance regulating traffic on Wisconsin-ave and Commercial-ave between 7 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock in the evening. The ordinance permits parking of cars on these two streets for a period of two hours only. Others arrested on the charge will appear Saturday evening in court.

LATEST NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

BUICK SCHEDULES "SPRING SHOWING"

National Exhibit Will Be Observed by Dealers Next Week

Realizing that the Springtime re-investigation of the automobile consciousness of the motoring public, officials of the Buick Motor Company have dedicated the week beginning April 21 to a "National Spring Showing" of the complete Buick line.

For some weeks past Buick dealers in every city in the country have been preparing for the Spring Show. Color effects that blend with the vernal days of April and May have been placed on the display room floors and special emphasis has been put on these models with appeal to the spring and summer tourist.

The Spring Show is in line with the Buick policy of enabling the prospective buyer to judge for himself in the matter of motor car values the showing in this city will be open to the general public and demonstrations of the Buick's performance will be given to those interested.

The Buick plant at Flint, Michigan, has built over 2,000,000 automobiles during the quarter of a century that has elapsed since the first Buick was sold, and officials of the company predict that 1929 will prove one of the most active in the company's long and successful history. It is an eloquent fact that it required twenty years to build and sell the first million Buicks while the second million were sold in four years. This well defined trend toward the Buick, dealers report, is growing more pronounced year by year.

The soft contours of the 1929 Buick models together with the delicate artistry displayed in the color combinations that are available make the 1929 Spring showing one of the most attractive in automobile history.

ROOSEVELT SWEEPS COUNTRY, REPORT

Public Shows Instantaneous Approval of New Marmon-built Model

The nation-wide introduction of the new Marmon-built Roosevelt last week resulted in an instantaneous public reception that far exceeded in intensity, enthusiasm and actual sales results any other new car announcement in the history of Marmon.

The public acceptance of the Roosevelt, in fact, was regarded by Marmon factory officials as one of the greatest ever accorded a new automobile, this opinion being based on reports received from Marmon-Roosevelt distributors and dealers throughout the country.

Conservative estimates place the number of visitors to Marmon salesrooms from coast to coast in the first two days of the Roosevelt presentation at 500,000, with the total mounting steadily as the week progressed. The result has been an influx of a record-breaking number of orders and insistent requests from scores of distributors and dealers for immediate shipments greatly in excess of their allotments of cars for the next two months.

Although March production of Marmon and Roosevelt cars was 40 per cent greater than the total output in any other previous month in Marmon history, further manufacturing increases are immediately contemplated in order to take care of the increased demand. Production at present is at the rate of 250 cars a day, with thousands of unfilled orders still on the books of the company.

Representative of reports being received at the Marmon factory from dealers throughout the country is a message from New York in which it is stated that 269 retail Roosevelt orders were taken in a single day. In Detroit, the "motor city," crowds averaging 5,000 daily visited the Marmon salesroom and more than a score of retail sales were reported on an average each day during the Roosevelt opening.

Marmon distributors in Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh reported daily crowds running well into the thousands. In Cleveland it was necessary to serve meals to the Marmon sales force in the salesroom so great was the number of visitors. From New Orleans, the Marmon distributor sent the following wire:

"New Orleans public electrified at Roosevelt value and performance with 4,532 visitors checked on opening day. One hundred and twenty-seven appraisals made. Marmon name brought before Southern public such as never before."

"The Roosevelt introduction greatly exceeded in public interest anything in my experience in the automobile industry," said Thomas E. Jarrard, Marmon general sales director, in regard to the enthusiastic expressions from Marmon distributors and dealers. "Not only are the actual number of orders the greatest of record, but we have every reason to believe that the Roosevelt has created more interest on the part of dealers than any other new car announced in the same price field."

Hundreds of people saw the new Roosevelt in Appleton at the M. Wagner garage, 1330 E. Wisconsin.

TWO-CHASSIS IDEA RETAINED IN HUDSON

Interesting Variety of Bodies Is Presented in New Models

In the Greater Hudson—as the larger of the two cars built by the Hudson Motor Car company is now called—the two chassis idea has been retained and elaborated into an interesting variety of bodies, mounted on a standard chassis and a long chassis, the former being 122 inches and the latter 129 inches. Although the two chassis carry different bodies, their salient mechanical features are the same.

The wider variety of body choices is given to the standard chassis which comes with nine bodies, namely: roadster, phaeton, coupe, convertible coupe, coach, victoria, standard sedan, town sedan and landau-sedan. The 122-inch convertible coupe is an interesting addition to the line, offering the seclusion of a coupe body which in a few moments with the aid of disappearing windows, may be converted into an open model with top down.

A model which shows a number of interesting changes is the victoria. The former sloping back with folding lid has given way to straighter lines, permitting the place of a trunk of original and harmonious outlines. Changes appear also in the seating arrangement of the new victoria. The seats are no longer staggered, but extend straight across the body in the rear, while the front seats are side by side.

Available on the 139-inch chassis are five bodies—a four-passenger sport phaeton, a seven-passenger phaeton, a five-passenger sport sedan, a seven-passenger sedan and a limousine.

The bodies of both chassis average four inches longer and 3 1/2 inches wider than the immediate predecessors. While there is, in consequence, more leg and elbow room, nothing intrudes on the slender grace that is the dominant note of the body contours.

The endeavor to increase comfort has also been carried into the front compartments. The front seats of sedans and the driver's seat in the coach and victoria models may be adjusted 1 1/2 inches forward or back by means of a large, easily manipulated wheel located at the seat base. This wide adjustment range, together with the variable tilt that may be given to the steering column, assures a tailor-made body fit, no matter how the occupants may vary in height, leg length and other physical characteristics.

NASH CONTINUES INCREASED SALES

Sales Records for March Are 44 Per Cent Higher Than Year Ago

Kenosha — Factory shipments in March of 15,384 new Nash "400" Series cars brought an increase in Nash "400" Series cars brought an increase in Nash manufacturing and sales records of 44 percent over the month a year ago, according to announcement made today by sales department officials of the Nash Motors Company.

Following as it does a gain of 77 percent in January shipments and 33 percent in February, the March showing attests the increased business done by Nash so far in 1929 or the similar period last year to an average gain of 43 percent, for the entire three months, and indicates the increasing demand and continued popularity of these new "400" Nash cars.

"This gratifying increase, in the face of a late spring and bad weather conditions holds excellent promise for the entire Nash organization in the spring and summer months to come," C. H. Bliss, general sales manager declared today. "The reports received weekly from leading market centers in the United States show that the Nash '400's' rose to the greatest sales level in the history of the company during the closing week of March, and that there is a decided upward trend in Nash sales all along the line."

"The March record may be taken as another proof of the lasting success won by these models and their leadership in this sales field," The Appleton Nash Company is the local dealer.

TWO-DOOR MODEL IS OFFERED BY PAIGE

Machine Is Five Passenger Car and Completes Line of Bodies

Graham-Paige has brought out a two-door five-passenger sedan to complete the line of bodies supplied on the popular six-cylinder 112-inch wheel-base chassis, model "612."

In style and comfort, the new two-door closely follows the standards of the four-door model. Both exterior and interior carry the features that mark the full sedan type.

Standard equipment includes painted wood wheels, with 5.00-19 balloon tires; but the car may be bolted with steel or wire wheels—either five wheels with a spare tire carrier or six wheels with side mountings and a truck rack.

The new sedan is finished in a light gray with mouldings and reveals in a lighter gray, striped with emerald green. Both steel and wood wheels are in the lighter gray, emerald striped, while wire wheels are emerald green all over.

Of special interest to owners is the sliding arrangement for the two front seats. Passengers in either seat may, by releasing a convenient latch, roll forward, opening a clear passageway for those entering or leaving the rear compartment. The old draw-back of the two-door car—the inconvenience to front seat passengers who were compelled to get out of the car to admit others—thus eliminated.

The seat cushions and backs are upholstered in Chase mohair, with carpet, headlining and side-fall trim in closely harmonizing colors. The interior hardware, which includes a dome light with toggle switch, the right side door pillar, is of rose design. Garnish mouldings and the instrument board are finished in a color matching the body. Arm-rests with inset ash trays are comfort features.

With the addition of the two-door sedan, the 612 chassis—six cylinders, 112-inch wheelbase—is now available in seven body styles. Besides the new two-door, this series of cars has had added to it, since the show season, a two-passenger coupe model—either with or without a rumble seat for two additional passengers. Each type may be had with wood, steel, or wire wheels.

NEW MODEL FORDS PROVE PERFORMANCE

Letters from Customers Prove Their Satisfaction After Stiff Tests

You are buying proved performance when you buy the new Ford. You know exactly what it will do. There is nothing of an experiment about it.

Letters from users show a delivered value far beyond expectations. Almost without exception they stress reliability. "You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase: 'Let me tell you what my new Ford did.'"

A well-known tire company, solely to test tires, drove a new Ford more than 90,000 miles in six months. Throughout that time the car was run day and night, an average of twenty-two hours out of every twenty-four. The entire cost of repair parts was only $38 for the entire 90,000 miles.

Another tire company, making a similar test, drove the new Ford more than 80,000 miles in a short period, at a cost per mile that was fully 60 per cent less than any figure it had previously known.

CLIMB WINS ACCLAM From Scotland comes a cable telling how the new Ford was driven to the summit of Ben Nevis, the highest mountain in Great Britain. This extremely difficult ascent was made over rock-strewn, almost impassible mountain trails—an example of the unusual stamina and performance of the new Ford. Only once before had this ascent been made by a motor car.

Describing the ascent in the Sunday Post of Glasgow, Captain Gordon Aston wrote: "The road can be called a road only by extravagant courtesy. It is in reality a track for pack horses. The surface throughout is almost incredibly vile. There are numerous sharp hairpin turns and in many places conditions are highly dangerous."

Other incidents are even more dramatic. A letter from Albany, N. Y., tells how the Truxer shatter-proof glass windshield of the new Ford prevented injuries from flying glass when a physician's car was forced off the road into a telegraph pole.

The smart ebony finish instrument panel on the new Oakland All-American Six, with instruments symmetrically grouped, imparts an air of dignity and refinement to the front compartment.

DISPLAY PONTIAC SIXES, OAKLANDS

National Exhibit Will Acquaint Motorists With New Developments

In the conjunction with a national program participated in by 25,000 automobile dealers, the doors swung open today on a special display of new Oakland and Pontiac Sixes at the showrooms of the O. R. Kloehn Co., local dealers.

This display ties in with the General Motors Spring Showing, a huge cooperative undertaking providing for dealers handling all makes of General Motors cars in the United States to place more than 125,000 automobiles on exhibition from April 20 to 27. Mr. Kloehn, president of the local organization stated:

"The idea behind this national showing is to acquaint motorists with the newest developments in motor car style and performance during that season of the year when they are vitally interested," he continued.

"The General Motors Spring Showing comprises the largest simultaneous exhibition of new automobiles since the inception of the industry. Thousands of new Oakland All-American Sixes and new Pontiac Big Sixes along with the used during the week solely for display purposes."

"Our own showrooms at 414 W. College Ave., have been especially arranged to provide all interested local citizens with a concrete and informative conception of the latest trend in smart color combinations and body styles, as well as new engineering developments that provide responsive performance at all speed ranges. Special shipments of cars have been received from the factory to endow the exhibit with a wide variety of body types dressed in brilliant spring color combinations."

"We believe our exhibit will prove of special interest because both lines of cars have features new in the industry. This is keeping with the reputation established by the Oakland-Pontiac organization for being first with many new developments that since have been widely adopted by other manufacturers."

"Notable among the features contributing to the fame and prestige of our cars are the cross-flow radiator, Ducco finish, four-wheel brakes, the rubber-cushioned chassis, oil and fuel filters and air cleaner, crankcase ventilation and depressible beam headlights operated by foot control. The new Oakland All-American Six also was the first car to bring the custom-like Landaulet Sedan, with a soft folding top over the rear quarter section, out of the high priced class."

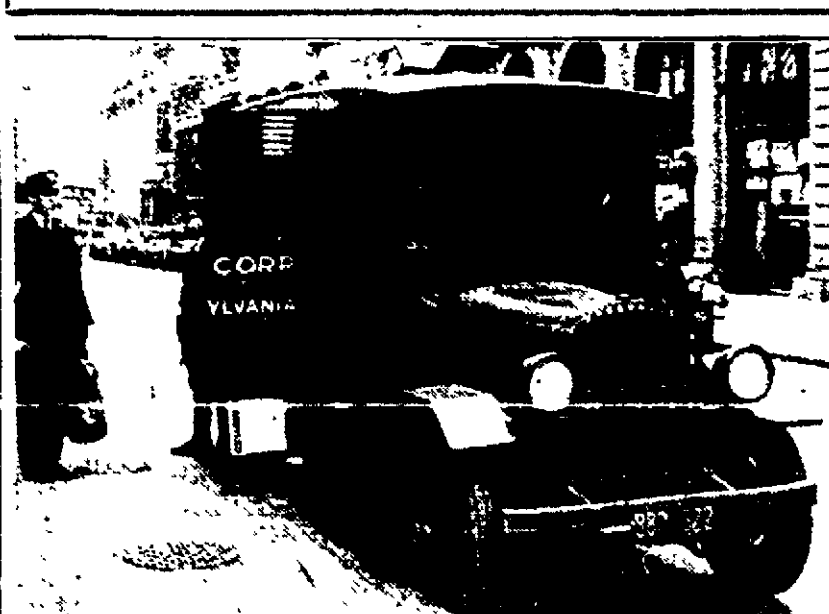

"This new body type also is being shown in the latest Pontiac Big Six. There are seven body types in the Pontiac line and eight in the new All-American series, the fifteen models offering distinctive style and performance features at a price range of from $745 to $1255, f. o. b. the factory."

"Features common to both lines in the smart new bodies by Fisher are the adjustable driver's seat which may easily and quickly be set to accommodate the height of any driver; ebony finish instrument panel flooded by two shielded bulbs; harmonic balancer and counterweighted crankshaft to provide for easy, vibrationless performance; larger, faster and more powerful engines; new Oakland internal-expanding, weather-proof four wheel brakes, and Hotchkiss drives."

"Four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and fitted spring covers packed with lubricant to insure freedom from squeaks and ease of riding for many miles, are standard equipment with the All-American and are fitted at the factory for eight extra cost on the new Pontiac Big Six."

"Ample provision has been made in our showroom to accommodate a large number of guests during the week. We anticipate a high attendance of motor-minded people in view of the unusual character of the showing."

CHEVROLET FREIGHT BILL $46,000,000

Striking evidence of the heavy demands made annually on the railroads by automobile manufacturers came to light yesterday with the announcement of C. R. Schaff, general traffic director of Chevrolet Motor Company, that the company's freight bill for 1928, representing inbound and outbound shipments for 14 domestic plants, totalled more than $46,000,000. This was an increase of more than $11,000,000 over the 1927 bill.

In making the announcement, Mr. Schaff revealed that the 1928 bill covered the movement of 272,368 car loads of freight, totalling 7,968,917,521 pounds. Exclusive of this poundage Mr. Schaff declared there was an additional 221,405,427 pounds of less than carload freight, 1,767,758 pounds shipped by express and 331,940 drayloads.

These figures show the immense increase in the company's business.

increase of motor-minded people in view of the unusual character of the showing."

MILLER BALLOONS MAKE EASY RIDING

Car Equipped With These Tires Takes Bumpy Roads Smoothly

The average automobile driver now hits the bumps as he never used to hit them.

And all because of the soft, easy riding, luxury giving Miller De Luxe balloon tire which makes him think that a bumpy road is a glass-smooth boulevard.

Therefore balloon tires must stand a great deal more punishment than their predecessors, high pressure tires, according to Miller tire men here. Tiremen assert that in spite of this fact they show up as well as the high pressure tire.

The driver whose car rides on high pressure tires is fully conscious of all the bumps and jars, and when he sees a bad spot in the road he steers around it, say tiremen. But when he puts on balloon tires, he hits the bumps, because he doesn't realize the punishment he gives the tires. They absorb the shock while the car and driver escape.

The comfortable balloon tire has caused another thing—the maintenance of an even, steady speed—in spite of rough stretches in the road. For while drivers no longer steer around the bad spots, neither do they slow down. And, while the driver doesn't realize it, his tires must take punishment he never would have thought of giving high pressure tires.

While development of the less pile with its greater air space, and cushioning qualities has been an aid to motoring comfort, operators of light, high speed trucks and buses have seen its advantages and many of them now are using it for commercial cars.

Cars will last longer, and will not develop squeaks and rattles early in their service when equipped with balloon tires, even with the added punishment that is given by driving full speed over rough and bumpy roads.

Miller De Luxe and Regular Miller are sold by the Appleton Tire Shop, 218 E. College Avenue, Appleton.

Roominess and comfort of passengers was a major consideration in designing the new Fisher bodies on the latest Oakland All-American Six. The rear seats being among the widest used on any car regardless of price.

BANDITS IN PATRIOT'S GARB

There are times when revolution is justified, by its cause or its results. Our own revolution was such. There is something to be said for the spirit of revolt in general, because it keeps nations and individuals alert politically and jealous for their rights. Americans could not be true to their own history and traditions if they did not recognize the principles set forth in our own Declaration of Independence, asserting the inalienable right of a people to change their government when that government ceases to represent them and serve their best interests.
We have seen revolts in recent years based on such high principles. We have seen one or two of them in Mexico. But the revolt crushed with such vigor and promptness by President Gil and Gen. Calles is not of that type. With this revolt in its dying gasp, after occupying a prominent place in the news for several weeks, few Americans have yet been able to get any clear notion what it was about. If the uprising represented any coherent principle, the American public has not been able to learn what it was. It seems to have been simply a loose effort on the part of ambitious military leaders to seize the government and use it for their own personal benefit. Even party spirit has been lacking. The revolting leaders were largely of the same party as the administration in power. Their followers were men who fought only because they were paid to fight.
There is widespread satisfaction in the outcome, in Mexico and in the United States. But the pity of it! Thousands of Mexicans have been killed and wounded. Cities have been wrecked. Railroads and other valuable property have been destroyed. Banks and stores have been looted. Business and finance have been upset. A young country, just beginning to show progress and gain hope and confidence after long years of civil war, was set back again. And all to no purpose. Once more Mexico has been the victim of bandits camouflaged as patriots.

BENEVOLENT BUSINESS

"Modern business is in the saddle in this country," says a political authority. "Most leaders of big business are benevolent despots, intelligent men intent upon the common welfare." Wherefore we are getting along wonderfully well.
"But," he adds, "The minute these men fail, there will be the greatest demand for government ownership and the greatest wave of radicalism this country has ever seen."
It sounds plausible. And perhaps it is useful as a warning—to the benevolent captains of industry and commerce and finance to continue benevolent, and to the people in general to keep a weather eye out.
Fortunately there seems to be no present cause for alarm. Big business grows more benevolent rather than less. This trend may carry us far. If ever does come to government ownership and control, we may be sufficiently developed by that time to have the big business men running things for the people in the name of the government.

SENATORIAL VENTILATION

When Senator Copeland of New York called on President Hoover in the latter's office the other day, he found the air warm and stale. He immediately insisted that something be done about it. And being a physician by profession, he succeeded in opening a window.
With that success to his credit, Senator Copeland might carry his health campaign to the capitol. Public buildings always seem to need ventilation, and the senate chamber at Washington is particularly in need of it.

AIR AND RAIL RIVALS

Recently published figures concerning civil aviation in the year 1928 are quite astounding. There are now 3,000 towns in the United States that are "air marked" so that passing flyers may know what city they are over. The number of improved airports increased 50 per cent during 1928. Nine hundred and twenty-nine more airports are projected or in various stages of construction thus early in 1929. On Jan. 1 there were more than 9,000 miles of lighted airways suitable for night flying, with 259 intermediate lighted landing fields. Twenty-five hundred additional miles of lighted airways will be ready by July 1.

The amount of mail carried increased 300 per cent in one year. The number of passengers increased 420 per cent. Railroad lines are still far ahead of air lines in mileage, tonnage and number of passengers. They measure their freight in billions of tons as against the airways millions of pounds. But air transportation is increasing phenomenally, while rail transportation is beginning to decline. A day may come when the two will be evenly matched, except for heavy hauling, and eventually their situations may be reversed.

POOR HENRY FORD

Pity Henry Ford. He lost $72,221,000 last year. That was while he was changing from his old car to his new. It is a huge, costly task to alter an entire plant, producing cars by the million, and produce a new model.
At the end of the year, all Henry had in the bank was $582,629,000. Was there ever such a ravenous pack of wolves howling outside of a poor billionaire's door?
But we needn't pity Henry too much. Somehow, through it all, he never seemed to worry much. Most of us would probably feel a sinking sensation in the pit of the stomach if we lost $72,221,000. Henry, according to all accounts, kept right on eating and relishing his three meals a day. Possibly the half-billion cash had something to do with his philosophic attitude.
"What do you suppose we accumulated that reserve for?" he asked a reporter one day, while his plant was eating its head off in idleness. Evidently Henry believes in saving up for a rainy day. And his faith is justified. The rain is now over. He is making more cars than ever, and may soon have enough cash to ride out a Noachian deluge.

WASHINGTON ETIQUETTE

Etiquette seems to be the theme, song of the current social drama in Washington. A lot of plain citizens who have never seen the nation's capital are suddenly becoming excited about social precedence at dinners, all because the vice president happens to be a widower who would like to have his married sister act as his official hostess.
It is no laughing matter. A hasty reference to Emily Post's noble work on the subject discloses that the correct solution to the problem is "vitally necessary," and that "social death" follows a single mistake. Fortunately for many social secretaries, Emily gives a partial list which provides for 38 different degrees of rank. It is worth reading.

A study of her list suggests that the easiest way out for any ordinary mortal is just never to give or attend a social function in Washington. Before abandoning the puzzle entirely, however, one might be forgiven for mild surprise that the Secretary of the Smithsonian institution ranks ahead of the director of the Pan-American Union. Why should he? Well, why not? It is all as sweet and reasonable as Alice in Wonderland.

MIGRATION FROM FARMS

Recent figures given out by the department of agriculture show the present farm population of this country to be 27,511,000, the smallest in 20 years. The past year saw both a slight improvement in agricultural conditions and a slight slackening in industrial employment. In spite of these two facts, the year showed a continued movement away from farms.
So pronounced was this movement that the net loss of farm population would have been far greater than the figures show, had it not been for a high birth rate and low death rate. There is nothing alarming in this cityward movement. It is one way toward genuine agricultural relief. The more efficient farmers become, the fewer of them it requires to produce the nation's food. No doubt other remedies will be helpful, too. While experts seek them, this natural migration goes ahead of itself.

Today's Anniversary

BACON'S REBELLION
Today is the anniversary of the first uprising of American colonists against British authority, "Bacon's Rebellion," in Virginia in 1676. It preceded the Revolutionary War.

Discontent began in the colony when the new Parliament of Charles II enacted laws affecting the importation of colonial goods. The act brought financial distress to practically all the 50,000 inhabitants of Virginia, most of whom were engaged in raising the agricultural products suddenly banned. Close upon the heels of this came an Indian uprising which Governor Berkeley refused to suppress.

Finally, Nathaniel Bacon, an educated young Englishman, took matters in his own hands. He gathered an army of 300 men and, over the protests of Berkeley, led them against the Indians. Several times Bacon and his army were forced to turn back from fighting Indians and return to save the colonists of Jamestown from Berkeley's oppression.
Bacon routed the Indians in the battle of Bloody Run and became a popular hero. Nothing stood between him and undisputed, absolute control of the colony. Then he died, suddenly and mysteriously. And Berkeley's regime continued.

HOW TO HANDLE A DOCTOR

In the first place, catch your doctor, and be sure he is a real one. Probably there are two spurious ones holding forth under this title for every bona fide M. D. in practice so you had better be careful about that. Tell the doctor what your present complaint is. No, don't offer him a ready-made diagnosis, and don't try to impress him with your command of medical terms. Use your own words to describe your trouble, no matter how homely or unfamiliar you may think your words will seem to the doctor. Call a spade a spade in the secret of the consulting room; it may prevent mistakes.

Never begin by saying "Doctor, I am in a run down condition," or "My nerves are all shot," or "I'd like a good tonic"—it is a sore temptation to a busy doctor to let it go at that, since you seem so dumb. What has really brought you to the doctor? Tell him that. Leave it to the doctor to decide whether your nerves are shot or whether your condition requires a tonic—what ever that may be. From my own years of practice I think a good tonic is something the doctor prescribes for you when he hasn't the foggiest notion just what if anything does all you.

Every interview should commence with a simple statement by the patient of his present complaint. Having told the doctor that, the patient properly pauses to draw breath and ask him to explain what it means; he will have much more respect for your intelligence than he would if you attempted to bluff about such a thing. No one realizes how difficult it is for him to express his thoughts in language without technical obfuscation. As a matter of fact the greater the doctor's erudition the less he resorts to that quaint trick in his conversation with patients.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Another Quercu Bachelor
Is a man who has taken the university degree Bachelor of Medicine entitled to the designation M. D.? He so signs his name and is in practice, and the public calls him doctor. (Mrs. M. J.)

Answer—Not unless he has received the doctorate degree. If you care to name the man and give the address I may be able to advise you whether he is a qualified physician or a faker.

Chapped, Red Hands
My husband and I have found your lotion for chapping and redness very satisfactory. It relieves the trouble yet does not leave one's hands sticky as do most such lotions. (Mrs. L. C.)

Answer—The lotion is an old standard, and many who have used it for years agree with Mrs. G. I hope the recipe in body may prepare the lotion for you. Boil, stirring constantly, a pint of salt water or distilled water and 80 grains (perhaps a tablespoonful) of tragacanth shavings or chips (not powder). Add three teaspoonfuls of glycerin and one-half ounce of boracic acid. When you get a clear thin fluid, bottle it. A few drops on the hands before they are quite dry, after washing, and after shaving, every day, or two or three times a day. If the fluid becomes too thick, thin it down to the right consistency with water.

Low Diet
Is it possible to shrink one's stomach by taking nothing but liquids for a few days? (Miss D. P.)

Answer—No. That would be more likely to expand the stomach.

Children and Dogs
We expect to have new bimbo pretty soon. I have had a Boston bull for three years. Ben Told assures us dog and bimbo incompatible. Wife worried. Our dooryard is fenced in and dog never runs the streets. Must we give up dog if we decide to keep bimbo? (E. A. V.)

Answer—No. Keep 'em both. The ferrier will be as nice as pie to the baby, if he lives up to his breed.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER
Washington—What kind of a man is the new senator from Missouri—the one who will sit in the seat occupied for so long by the illustrious Jim Reed?

The question might be answered with the simple statement that Roscoe Patterson is as opposite from Jim Reed as the two poles. There is scarcely a trace of similarity.

Unlike Jim Reed, Senator Patterson is not regarded as a great orator. Not that he has a poor delivery, but he sacrifices attempts at eloquence for logic. His speeches also lack the biting sarcasm and vindictiveness of Reed.

He is a successful attorney and comes from a family of lawyers. His father and two brothers are members of that profession. Until he accepted appointment as United States attorney he had lived all of his life in Springfield, Greene county. He is married and has one son.

LIKES INFORMATION
Patterson is a man of personal magnetism, makes friends easily, and keeps them. His friends say that he never is happier than when surrounded by people. His sense of humor is hard to equal. He laughingly confessed to this writer that he was always glad to see anyone who had information, for it was difficult for him to get hold of enough to satisfy the demand.

He is a great theater-goer, but prefers classical drama. He laments the passing of Shakespearean plays from the stage.

If the senator is not in his office it is a pretty safe bet that he is out in his automobile, for motoring is his one hobby. He and his family spurned the train when they came to Washington. He drives his own car, and has made extended motor trips.

"COMMON PEOPLE" LIKE HIM
Missouri's new senator is described by his friends as being the most typical representative of the "common people" of his state that the commonwealth has had in the United States senate for years. They refer to the circumstances under which he was elected. He comes from Springfield, one of the smaller cities of the state. His opponents were from the two great urban centers—St. Louis and Kansas City.

The "common people" rallied to his standard, and he was swept into of it with a majority of 61,000. Senator Patterson is a conservative Republican. There is nothing of the radical about him. He is for law enforcement first, left and alarm bells (perhaps a tablespoonful) of tragacanth shavings or chips (not powder). Add three teaspoonfuls of glycerin and one-half ounce of boracic acid. When you get a clear thin fluid, bottle it. A few drops on the hands before they are quite dry, after washing, and after shaving, every day, or two or three times a day. If the fluid becomes too thick, thin it down to the right consistency with water.

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan

New York—The first warm April showers sent a young lady of my acquaintance, who lives in the suburbs, on a round of New York's largest stores. She was looking for a sunbonnet, of all things.

And though these great emporiums carry the wares of the world, although the rarest Oriental perfumes are on their shelves and the most costly of raiment upon their racks—many a sunbonnet did they have.

What was more, so she reported to me, three clerks giggled out loud at her request. Amused at their attitude, the young lady questioned the clerks and found that they never have seen anyone wearing a sunbonnet except in the movies.

Pardon me while I wipe my tear-dimmed eyes.

Speaking of spring-like things, I am reminded that our one and only gingko tree is bursting into bloom. Standing, as it does, in City Hall Park, our one and only gingko tree draws the attention of visitors from all parts of the world.

When Manhattan puts up the largest building in the world—that's a commonplace. But when a tree is added to the limited space provided for growing things—that's something to write to the newspaper front pages about.

Our one and only gingko has achieved almost as much newspaper space as Texas Guinan's trial or the funeral of Tex Rickard.

In the event that news of this rare addition to the flora and fauna of the city has not trickled beyond the Harlem River, let me hasten to explain that the gingko is the sacred tree of Japan. In the Orient they build shrines about it. In New York such political edifices as city halls rise about it.

Pilgrims come from every section of the city to gaze upon it. And until such time as the city becomes accustomed to its presence, a guard watches it at night, lest it be chopped, maimed or despoiled by souvenir hunters.

Also, for the edification of my rural readers, I may add that our one and only pig and cow are now browsing right outdoors, along with a few ducks, chickens and such, behind the bars of the Central Park zoo cage.

These are maintained in the park year in and year out so that the city born youngsters will know what a cow, a pig and a rooster look like. They are far better acquainted with the appearance of a polar bear, or a zebra—thanks to circuses and zoos. But a litter of pigs and a cow being milked are sights to draw an open-mouthed crowd.

Somehow, in detailing recently, the various portents of approaching summer, I overlooked one of the most important—the small boys hanging around the Polo grounds and the stadium. Whenever from your point of vantage on the elevated train, you see the rollers going over the baseball grounds; whenever you observe groups of youngsters looking over the weak places in the fences and snooping around the locker rooms—you can bet your winter's raccoon coat that the cry of "Play ball!" will soon be heard in the land.

I have also noticed that the displays of bathing suits are more lavish in mid-January than in mid-summer. In mid-January, the smart shops make their play for the wealthy sojourners in Florida, the Bahamas and way resorts. In mid-summer they are showing next winter's fur coats.

make a speech. It has finally happened—a legislative joke that wasn't on the taxpayers.

Diogenes are having a large sale in the larger cities. The small towns get theirs by going down to watch the trains come in.

Five Chicago gunmen robbed worshippers in a synagogue of $7000, but they didn't take anything from the rabbi. That proves they had a conscience, anyway.

The dentist's business must be showing a remarkable improvement this spring—in fact ever since the opening of the baseball season.

A city is no longer a town when it has two golf courses, one of which is known as the "Metropolitan Links."

A couple of New Jersey legislators poured a pitcher of ice water over a colleague when he arose to

The ducking stool was used by our forebears to punish small infractions, like unsanctioned use of the rolling pin, or too free use of the tongue. In those days, it was considered quite entertaining for everyone concerned, except the duckee.

One of the most entertaining things in your life will be one of our Spring suits, chosen from so many attractive patterns, styled by tailors who know and "sold right." We FIT you.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson Hotel, has her fox fur snatched from her in a crowd, but STEPHEN ARMSTRONG catches the thief and returns the scarf. He asks to take her home. Not wishing to seem ungrateful, she invites him to dinner.

Their evening is spoiled when PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of Mildred's employer, phones her to return to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela recognizes him as the salesman who had sold her a car. She snubs Mildred and tries to lure Stephen away by pretending she wants to buy another car from him. When Pamela meets HUCK CONNOR, who tells her he is a broker from Chicago.

Stephen invites Mildred to the theater with him, and when Pamela learns that they are going she gets HUCK to take her, hoping to outshine Mildred with her expensive clothes.

Stephen confides to Mildred that he is suspicious of HUCK, but she thinks he is merely jealous of Pamela. After the show Mildred refuses to go to a night club party. And Pamela persuades her brother HAROLD, to go. He humiliates HUCK and confesses that he loves to gamble but hasn't been lucky. HUCK suggests that he play the ponies and offers to give him tips.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

Huck entered an unpretentious door in a dark building and passed down a long, narrow, uncarpeted hall to a small elevator in the rear. Up four flights of stairs he got to a short flight that brought him to a swinging door which he pushed open with his Malacca cane and strode beyond until he came to the third door on the right hand side. He was now in a building twice removed from the one he had entered from the street.

But not yet had he arrived at his destination. There was one more passageway to be negotiated. But this was different. It was not silent or darkened.

The buzz of excited voices held to a low tenor came to Huck's ears as soon as he had opened the door. Along one side of the passageway were other swinging doors that obstructed but did not completely conceal the view to the long room behind them. But Huck did not pause to glance within. His stride was hurried as he headed toward a door marked private. On it he rapped sharply—the prearranged signal—and was admitted after a hidden eye had scrutinized his features.

"Hello, Huck," he was greeted by a man at a gray steel desk. "How's the racket?"

"I need your help, Duke," Huck answered frankly. "There's a young chap I know that's got to be allowed to win a few bets."

"Well, steer him in." On the make, huh?"

Huck frowned. "Keep it quiet, will you, Duke? I'll bring the kid to you. He's your chump, see? I don't want it spilled that I'm in on it." Huck was reverting to the jargon of his people to appease Duke, who never liked to have a crook pull any high hat stuff with him.

"All right. What's the lay?" Duke grunted.

Huck told him. And the next day when he introduced Harold to the place and turned him over to Duke because he himself "had an important engagement with Mr. Rawlins," the boy was impressed with the attention he received as a friend of Huck's.

The latter took him aside for a confidence before he left. Harold had been told beforehand that Duke was merely a patron of the place, the man who gave Huck his hot tips.

"I think this man Duke is on the level," Huck said to him; "but he may be only waiting until the time is ripe for a big killing. Don't go in too deep. You can't trust these touts."

Harold nodded. He couldn't get in very deep; his allowance was perpetually overdrawn. But it was a clever stroke on Huck's part to question Duke's honesty. It drew suspicion away from himself.

When Duke took him in where the crowd milled before the program charts on the wall, rushed from the bulletin boards to telephone booths, crowded around the announcer to get the telegraphed dope on the entries, feverishly consulted their dope sheets and finally made their bets, Harold had shifted what slight distrust of Huck he'd been entertaining to Duke and the people who ran the place.

Duke let him play the first race on dope sheet information. Harold lost a few dollars; not enough to discourage him. On the second race his horse came in second. On the third he lost again. Then Duke took a hand.

He got Harold into a room with a private wire when he put in a mysterious call and pretended to wait nervously for a return call. When it came it was the return on the fourth race, but to Harold, judging from Duke's end of the conversation, it purported to be a hot tip.

Duke declared he'd have to get the bet down quickly, but Harold was skeptical. "All right," Duke cried, "I'm betting," and hurried out of the room.

Harold followed, but at the door a man cutting across his path bumped sharply into him and knocked him back into the room. "Look where you're going," the other snarled, and Harold told him angrily to watch his own step. The fellow wanted to fight, and so far as Harold knew, there might have been trouble if Duke had not returned and put a stop to it.

Which little diversion prevented Harold from finding out that Duke had placed his bet after the race was won. And when she position, Miss Lawrence?" he asked quietly.

Mildred nodded. "If Miss Judson would let me alone," she said.

The manager sighed. "Ah, my dear," he replied, "that's just it. She isn't going to let you alone. You're too pretty, and you've managed to get in her way. But I should hate to lose you. We very rarely have complaints against you," he smiled. "There are cranks, you know, who would complain against perfection."

"I think I'd better leave, Mr. Daz-el," Mildred said tensely. The manager shook his head. "Perhaps we can adjust the matter," he said anxiously. "I was under an impression of how you had come to know this Mr. Armilage who appears to be the cause of the trouble."

"I know," Mildred said wearily. "Miss Judson probably told you I nicked him up. Well, I did, in a way, but not in a hotel."

"Well, well," The manager seemed desirous of closing the interview. "It may be a choice for you between your place here and the young man. I'd advise you to give the matter serious thought."

Mildred was giving it serious thought. She forgot about Harold and her concern over seeing him with Huck Connor until he came to her desk just before closing time and begged her for a date.

"I've had a lucky day," he boasted. "Don't spoil it, Mildred. I'd rather take you out than any girl I know."

Mildred frowned. "What have you been up to?" she questioned, disturbed over the flush on the boy's face and the nervous, fidgeting gestures of his slim hands. "Drinking?"

"Winning," Harold answered. "Come on, baby, make me happy. A dinner in some quiet place where I can tell you how much I love you, then a show and some place to dance . . ."

"And I'd lose my job," Mildred finished for him; so he wouldn't suspect that she was trying to manage him. "Nothing doing, firebrand. I was out last night. But if you can bring yourself to spend a quiet evening at my fireside you're welcome to sit in on the radio and the hot chocolate."

"With mother and sister?"

"Connie's going out and I'll put mother to bed."

Harold moaned. "My God, a fireside! I bet you'll have a smoking jacket and slippers for me."

"Come early," Mildred told him, and started putting her desk in final order.

"I don't suppose you would come up to dinner," she added a little shyly. She hated to let him go now. He had been drinking, there was no mistaking that.

"I'd be tickled to death," he declared. "Wait for me."

And while he was gone for his topcoat Mildred closed and locked her desk. She was just turning away to get her own wraps when she looked up and saw Stephen approaching.

MEETING TO TALK AT RURAL P. T. A. MEETING

Members of the Parent Teacher association of Springbrook rural school, town of Cicero, will hear an address by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, at their meeting on Friday evening, April 26. Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, also will give a health talk, and students of the school will present a demonstration of music which has been taught during the past school year. Miss Caryl Short, one of the rural school music supervisors, will have charge of the demonstration.

SEND COMMITTEE TO STATUE DEDICATION

Madison —(AP)— A committee of two senators and three assemblymen will be sent to represent the legislature at the unveiling of the La Follette statue at Washington on April 25 under terms of a joint resolution approved by both houses Thursday.

The resolution introduced by Sen. Ben Gettelman, Milwaukee, received a unanimous vote in the two houses.

PUBLIC UTILITY TAXES ARE UNFAIR

So Says Chairman of Gas Section of State Utilities Association

Oshkosh — (AP) — Legislators attempting to include utilities that operate street car systems in the list of those that pay income taxes "are attempting to befog the facts," I. F. Nortendyke, Janesville, chairman of the gas section of the Wisconsin Utilities Association told members of the group here Thursday.

He used the argument utilities have presented before legislative committees hearing the Reis bill for the income enforcement that "utilities pay what amounts to an income tax because the tax commission capitalizes earnings. Companies whose earnings are higher than others are assessed much higher than companies whose earnings are not as large. That surly is being assessed on income."

Mr. Nortendyke said besides paying "what amounts to an income tax," the utilities pay more taxes than other property "for three reasons: Their property investment is 30 times higher than other property having the same annual gross income; because earnings are taken into consideration in determining their assessed value and because the tax commission experts go into greater detail to assess utility property than do local assessors."

He characterized proposals before the legislature to increase taxes on public utilities as "unfair and unjust," saying public utilities pay 55 per cent of their net incomes into taxes, while other regulated businesses pay but 21 per cent of its income to the state.

He said the proposals before the present legislature will add $2,000,000 to the tax burden of the light, heat and power companies, and warned that the increase will have to be paid by the consumer.

"Users do not generally appreciate that they pay the taxes of utilities

START WORK ON NEW GASOLINE STATION

Construction work on the new Standard Oil company of Indiana filling station at the intersection of W. College-ave and N. Richmond-st is well underway and it is expected the new structure will be ready for occupancy within the next 30 days.

The old station will be razed to make way for a wider run way and more gasoline pumps and oil tanks, according to officials of the company. The old pumps and tanks have been removed.

HANDLE WITH CARE

London—A drinking glass has been on the market here which is used for ice water without any ice. It is made of ice, itself, and is said to be very hygienic. It will last for about half an hour in an ordinary room.

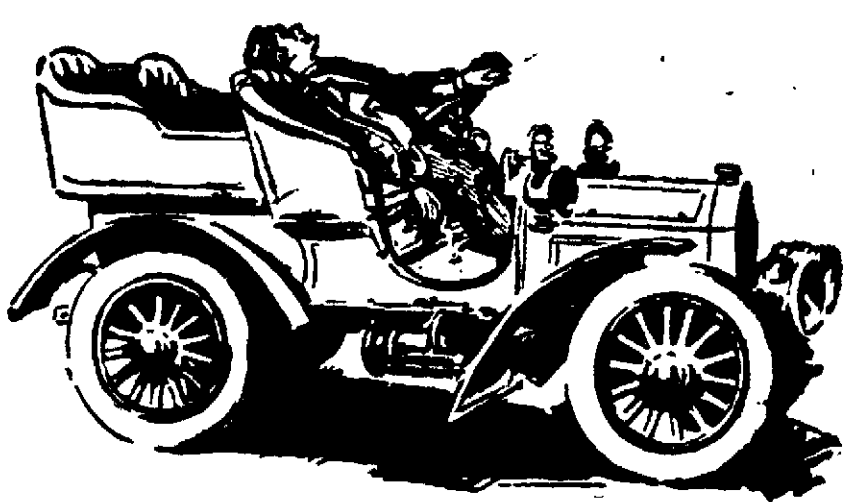

Indirectly in their monthly bills. Companies merely collect the tax from the consumer and transfer it to the government, because the only source of a public utility revenue is the rates in charges for service. Electric consumers in Wisconsin on the average pay $3.34 annually in indirect taxes to governmental units. The average consumer pays more than that. Higher rates on taxes increase the difference or spread the rates paid by large wholesale consumers and small residence consumers."

Stomach Ulcers

"After suffering for more than 15 years with this painful serious trouble, with everything recommended a failure, the last advice being an operation with no assurance even then of permanent relief, I finally found a new idea of treatment that cured me in 60 days with no restriction in diet. I am so grateful for my relief that I want to help others by saying that your wonderful treatment should be in the hands of every person suffering from ulcers or a super-acid stomach."

Will gladly explain this treatment.

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

BEAUTY HINTS

THE NEW Saint Sinner

By Anne Austin

"Is this going to turn into an announcement party?" Cherry demanded, when Harry Blaine and Crystal returned to the living room from the library.

Embarrassment and resentment deepened the flush on Crystal's cheeks, but she answered cheerfully: "Yes, the announcement being that Harry has landed me a glorious job on the Press. I'm going to have a chance to write, at last. Where's Tony? Harry has a job for her, too."

"What sort of job?" Cherry asked, with quick jealousy. "If Tony is a writer, then I'm Marie of Roumania."

"Oh, not a writing job!" Crystal laughed. "Tony's themes were the joke of our college. But Harry has agreed to write a play for The Press's Christmas Benefit."

"With Miss Crystal Hathaway as my honored collaborator," the reporter interrupted.

"—and he wants Tony to be the heroine," Crystal went on, ignoring the interruption.

"He wants a front-page heroine for his play, why doesn't he choose you, Crystal? You've had even more columns of publicity than Tony has—"

Harry Blaine's eyes flashed dangerously. "If I used that yardstick, Cherry, I'd have to choose you!" he said evenly. Then, because Crystal's fingers tightened convulsively on his arm, "I beg your pardon, Cherry."

"Oh, don't apologize!" Cherry cried, but her accompanying laugh was shrill with anger. "The same thought occurred to me, you know—especially since I also have been labeled 'the most beautiful girl in Stanton.'"

"True!" Harry Blaine bowed, with mock reverence. "But Tony has succeeded to the title, since beautiful Cherry Lane Jones no longer lives in Stanton, and is no longer, technically speaking, a girl."

"That ought to hold you, Cherry!" Nils laughed, his voice booming out in genuine mirth.

Harry Blaine flushed painfully. "Honestly, Cherry, I'm ashamed."

"Oh, don't be an idiot!" Cherry cut him short. "All my fault. I was jealous of Tony, of course. The truth is, I've always been stung by the fact that she was a girl, a girl, and when what looked like a well-kept opportunity to gratify my hidden passion came along I was naturally disappointed at being passed by."

Harry Blaine grinned as he took a small hand she thrust out at him. "Crystal didn't have the time to announce our entire cast. The truth is, Cherry, we'd written your name opposite the role of 'wicked vixen,' a nice, fat part, and if you'll consider second female lead—"

"You're a liar, but you're a darling!" Cherry laughed. "Of course I'd rather be a 'wicked vixen' than a 'second female lead' of a heroine. I can simply be myself—says I, before any other cat beats me to it. Whom do I vamp?—the heroine's sweetie?"

"Right," Harry agreed. "But he isn't cast yet. I'm going to let Tony have a vote when it comes to casting the hero."

"Then that's settled—Dick Talbot, of course," Cherry retorted. "I fore-

Simple Dignity Plus Distinction

BY CORA W. WILSON

A SIMPLE dignity lends distinction to this Dutch Colonial home. There are eight rooms and throughout the house is of wood construction. Brick chimneys, a paneled doorway, small, small-paned windows, a quaint formal entrance and a sloping, shingle roof make it a design of exceptional beauty.

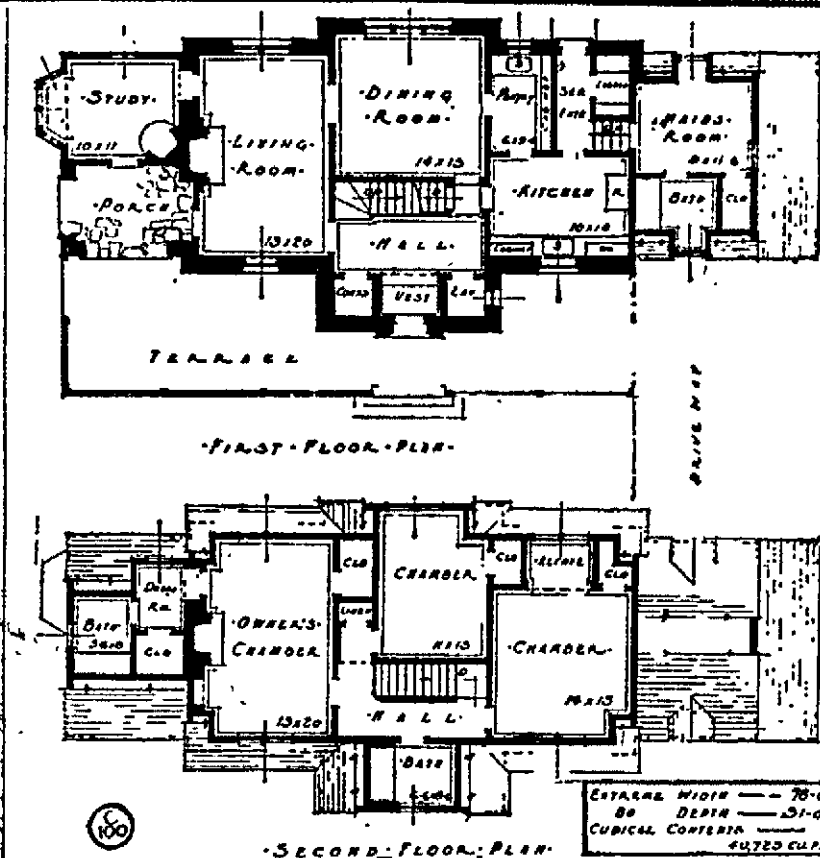

The interior is unique. There is a small vestibule provided with a convenient coat closet and lavatory. The visitor enters a hall with a true Colonial stairway and passes to the left into a good-sized living room that is distinguished by a large open fireplace. This room is lighted on two sides by large windows and there are French windows at one end of the room—one leading to an open porch and the other to a study that has an attractive fireplace in one corner.

On the wall opposite the study, glass French doors lead from the living room to the dining room, which looks out on the garden. From the dining room a door leads to the pantry and the kitchen. The servants' entry separates these rooms from the maid's room and the bath.

The maid's room is about five steps above the kitchen level, and the house being built on a sloping lot, the garage is below it.

On the second floor is a centrally located bathroom with a small hall between the two bedrooms. In this hall is a large cedar linen closet. There are closets in each bedroom. Also the master's bedroom is a double room with two closets and a dressing room leading into a modern bathroom. On one wall of the master's bedroom is a fine open fire place.

The house contains 40,725 cubic feet and at a cost of about 40 cents a cubic foot, the price of such a house would not be beyond the average main margin, if this size house is needed. The house is 78 feet in width and this would need at least a hundred foot lot.

Woman Collects Wild Flowers In The Yukon

BY SUE McNAMARA

(Associated Press Feature Writer)

Washington — (AP)—Mrs. George Black, wife of the Canadian member of parliament for the Yukon territory, pursues beautiful wild flowers in the far north with the zeal detectives use in trailing criminals.

She has a force of grizzled miners aiding her in her quest. Sometimes a miner will carry a delicate pink or blue flower 100 miles in his vest pocket to Mrs. Black's home in Dawson. Knowing her eagerness to get new varieties the miners have learned how to press the rare varieties between bits of absorbent cotton.

Mrs. Black, now on a visit in the "States," will be back in Dawson in June to resume her search for flowers.

She has collected over 400 specimens which are in the care of the British Columbia government. She has been a fellow of the Royal Geographical society of London. The Smithsonian Institution here has offered her a substantial sum for one of the specimens of Sphagnum moss.

While in the far north she spends most of her time in a hiking suit and goes out each day with her pressing boards under her arm hoping to find some new kind of violet or rose. She spends four daylight months of each year in her Dawson home. The rest of the time she is in Vancouver, Ottawa and the United States.

Dressed for a tea in smart black chiffon velvet Mrs. Black bore little resemblance to the frightened, dusty woman in hiking suit who had an encounter with a brown bear while hunting flowers.

"I had lain down to rest and fell asleep," she says. "When I opened my eyes a brown bear and two cubs were within a few feet of me. The cubs were pawing at my luncheon box and my coat, which I had left under a tree nearby. I lay perfectly still, afraid to move. You never can tell what a bear will do. They ate my sandwiches and abled off. When I could no longer hear the bushes crackling I jumped up and started for home as far as I could go."

Mrs. Black has originated a new way of mounting flowers which she calls "artistic botany." The pressed flower is mounted on a water color background which harmonizes with the flower's tints. A piece of ordinary hair net is stretched tight across the flower to protect it.

"I think every woman should have a hobby after her children are grown," she says. "I guess I've found mine in flowers."

Mrs. Black has lived in Dawson 23 years. She went there from her home in Chicago after her marriage. Mr. Black was then a practicing attorney in Dawson. At first they spent the year around in the north. Even the long months of darkness are interesting in the opinion of this buoyant woman who goes in for skating, skiing and curling, all sports of the northern winter months.

PRIMARY LAW CHANGE DUE TO WOMAN'S EFFORT

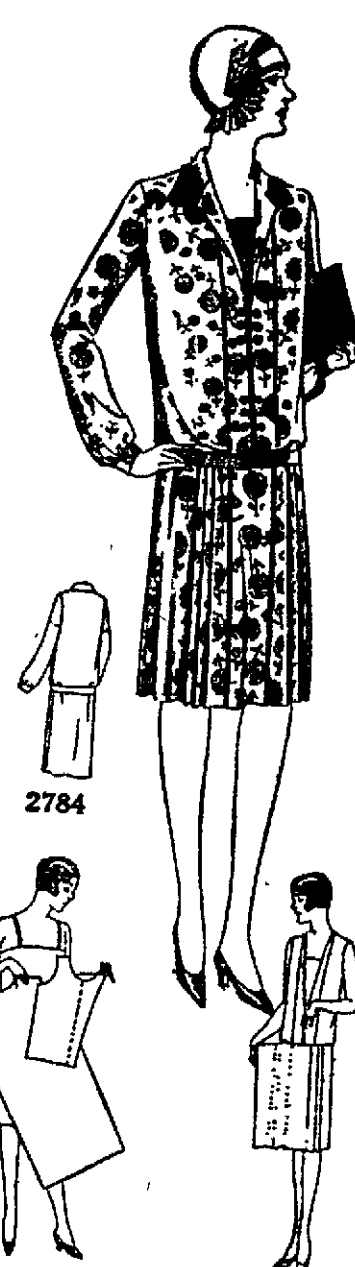

Madison, Wis. — (AP)—Mrs. Fredrick A. Ogg, wife of the head of the department of political science in the University of Wisconsin, largely is responsible for having secured permanent registration for Wisconsin voters.

Mrs. Ogg is president of the Madison league of women voters. She began to investigate registration methods in Wisconsin and found them obsolete and costly. With the assistance of Joseph P. Harris of the university a permanent registration bill was drawn up.

Through all the crowded hearings and valiant work of local leagues Mrs. Ogg was in the thick of it. The governor's veto did not dismay her and she kept on working until the bill finally was passed.

She then turned her attention to changing the date of the fall primaries. The bill which she helped draw up, now pending in the Wisconsin legislature with every prospect of passage, advances the primary date from the Tuesday after the first Monday in September to the third Tuesday in September.

THE shooting stars kept shooting 'round. Then Scout cried, "Where are we bound? It seems we're almost standing still. I'm getting tired of this. If there are strange things in the sky, I hope we see them bye and bye. But, let's get started up again. There's nothing here to miss."

The Goofygoo looked down and said, "I'm trying to move ahead, but with the stars all flashing I'm afraid that we'll be struck. Of course I'm not just standing still, but flying very slow until I know we're safe. I never like to monkey with bad luck."

Then one wee star the Tines knew came up and said, "What can I do? You all seem rather worried. Don't you like the stars' queer fight? If not, I'll chase them all away, although they're doing it in play. When once they learn to shoot they, like to shoot with all their might."

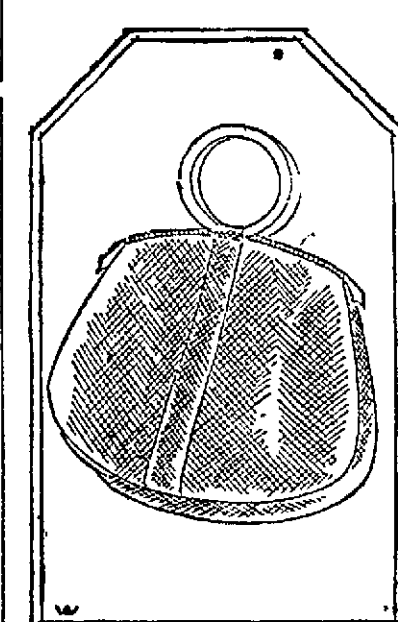

"That's fine," snapped Carpy, "but we feel that no more fighting will appeal. We've seen enough of it. I'm sure." The wee star said, "All right!" And then he shouted to each star, "Stop fighting, now, right where you are." The flock of stars obeyed him, and then disappeared from sight.

Soon Coppy shouted, "Look! I see a light as bright as it can be. It's overhead. Let's go up there and find out what it is." And so the Goofygoo swung high and made the Tines' eyes all aghast. It fairly took their breath away when he began to whiz.

The bird then pulled a big surprise, which opened up the Tines' eyes. He said, "That is the moon up there. I'll reach it pretty soon." And then he took one sudden lurch, My, what a funny place to perch. The Tines' cabin rested on the great big smiling moon.

KAISER'S BROTHER DIES IN GERMANY

Kaiser's yacht, "Meteor," at Jersey City, Prince Henry sailed from Germany on the new liner, Crown Prince Wilhelm of the North German Lloyd. Theodore Roosevelt was then president and as a sign of German-American friendship delegated his daughter Alice, now Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, to christen the Meteor. Prince Henry made an extended tour of American cities and everywhere was accorded enthusiastic receptions.

Three and one-half years younger than the former kaiser, Prince Henry was born August 14, 1862, in the new palace at Potsdam. He was the second of five children of the late Emperor Frederick III, his mother being Princess Victoria, daughter of Queen Victoria of England.

With the former kaiser he attended the "gymnasium" or high school at Cassel and then began his long service in the navy. By 1895 he had attained the rank of rear admiral and was assigned as marine inspector and later as commander of the second Far Eastern cruiser squadron. Departing for the Orient in December, 1897, Prince Henry assumed command of the East Asia fleet. Two years later he was promoted to vice admiral and in 1901, a year after his return to Germany, he was raised to the rank of admiral. He served as chief of the marine station of the Baltic until 1906, when he was given command of the active high seas fleet.

In 1887, Prince Henry married Princess Irene of Hessen, a daughter of Grand Duke Ludwig IV of Hessen and Princess Alice of Great Britain. They had two sons, Prince Waldemar, born in 1893, and Prince Sigismund, born in 1896.

FIFTY COUPLES ATTEND PARTY OF RACKET CLUB

The most successful party of the year for members of the Racket club was a formal dancing party, the annual spring party, Friday night at Elk club.

Fifty couples, including out-of-town guests from Oshkosh, Green Bay, Neenah and Menasha, were present and G. B. Horst orchestra played the dance program. A number of unusual features dances were a card dance, a May basket dance, and a guest book dance. Dorothy Davis and Nona Nemachek, two high school girls, were pages who assisted in the feature dances.

A Maypole wound with streamers of pastel colors was placed in the center of the dance floor and a canopy of the colored streamers was hung with May baskets. Flower-decorated trellises added to the spring atmosphere of the party as did large Japanese lanterns and poles twined with flowers on the stage. Arrangements for the party were made by Mr. and Mrs. Carl McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sherry, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tuttrup, Mr. and Mrs. John Engel, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore.

VARIED PROGRAM IS PRESENTED AT CHURCH BANQUET

More Than 100 Attend Gathering at Immanuel Reformed Church

Kaukauna—About 110 persons attended the annual young people's banquet Friday evening in the assembly of Immanuel Reformed church. A similar banquet is held there every year to promote friendship between members of the congregation.

Carl Grimm, divinity student of the Mission House college at Plymouth, was the toastmaster. A program was presented after the dinner. The men's quartet, composed of the Rev. Edward Worthman, Lyle Webster, Ervin Paschen and Otto Wedler, sang a number of songs. A comedy act was presented by Miss Gladys Heinke and Miss Ruth Paschen. Miss Esther Maw furnished the music.

Prof. F. Grether, D. D. of Plymouth, was the principal speaker. Alfred Klumb, student of the Mission House college, also was a speaker.

Kindness to Strangers was the subject of the talk by Prof. Grether. He pointed out that kindness always should be shown to strangers and told of the life of a former professor at the Mission House who always was kind to strangers. He told of some of the incidents of the professor which occurred when this act was shown.

Alfred Klumb's talk was on the day's program at the mission house. He outlined the activities at the school.

TRAPSHOOTERS TO HOLD SUNDAY SHOOT

Activities of Kaukauna Gun Club Will Commence at 1:30

Kaukauna—Kaukauna trapshooters will gather at the Kaukauna Gun club Sunday afternoon to take part in the first shoot of the season. Shooting will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon and last until dark. Ammunition will be available at the club. Several practice shoots will be held and then the club will open its season in the Northeastern Wisconsin Trapshooting league which will start on Sunday, May 12, in Kaukauna.

Water still is on the shooting grounds but it will not interfere with the shoot. There is no water near the club house, shooting stands or trap houses. There are two traps at the club and it is expected that both will be in constant use Sunday afternoon.

CANDIDATES FOR BALL TEAM WORK OUT DAILY

Kaukauna—About 15 candidates are reporting regularly for practice at the local ball park for the Kaukauna baseball team. Practices started last Monday and are to be held daily until May 5 when Kaukauna will open its season with a game with Marinette at that city. Two new faces are on the squad and it is expected that several more additions will be made before the starting game. The two new players are Richard Johnson and B. Mulry. The team is being managed by Les Smith who hopes to make a good showing in the Northeastern league this year.

Eight teams are in the league this summer. Wisconsin Rapids and Marinette have been added. They had crack teams last summer and expect to make things hard for the veteran league teams.

PLAN NEW SEWER ON LAWE-ST NEAR TRACKS

Kaukauna—About thirty feet of concrete will be removed by the McCarty Construction company from Lawe-st near the switch tracks in order that a new sewer main can be laid there. The work will be started next week. New concrete will be put in after the new sewer main is laid in.

OWNERS RESPONSIBLE

New Orleans—The Court of Appeals here recently made a ruling that accidents suffered by an automobile, rented to a drunken man by drive-it-yourself companies, were directly responsible to the owner of the car. It is the company's fault, the court ruled, because "one who is negligent in the operation of a dangerous agency is responsible for the mischief due to the incompetent operation of the machine."

ELECTRIC LEAKS UNDER CONTROL IN RADIO RECEPTION

Power Companies Accomplishing Much in Eliminating Interference

BY BEN G. KLINE
(Copyright, 1929, by Con. Press.)
San Francisco—Electrical leaks are the one big controllable source of radio reception ills, according to a spokesman for one of California's large power companies, whose experience is based upon the efforts his company has made in the last five years to cooperate with listeners in the improvement of radio reception.

Through making their crews instantly available for tracing down and remedying it, the power companies have removed many causes of squeals and snarls, and perhaps even more difficult, have convinced radio listeners that they are willing and ready to do what they can to better radio conditions.

"We have frequent complaints from widely scattered districts," said this man, who is connected with a utility.

"A complaint will come in from a particular neighborhood and the listener will say he knows the power company is responsible. A crew will be sent over our lines to discover if there are any leaks from lines or transformers.

"The crew may find nothing. Then it will investigate the neighborhood and perhaps find an electric heater or some other contrivance which is out of order and is causing the disturbance.

The complaint may be that the disturbance occurs at about the same hour each day and investigation may disclose that some woman is in the habit of using a curling iron or a vacuum cleaner at that hour and one of the contrivances leaks energy through poor insulation or worn-out condition.

"Sometimes it is our wires or equipment that is at fault and if so we correct it, though if the trouble comes from the operation of high tension voltage at a sub-station we can't very well remedy that. There is no way, either, for us to remedy disturbed other conditions caused by dental or medical machines in downtown buildings, though some towns are trying to remove such causes of bad reception except during certain hours by ordinances.

SMALL POWER USERS

The revenue power companies receive from users of radios is an incentive for them to assist in improving reception, contrary to much popular thought on the subject. Reports from several power companies in this state show that radios are very small users of power. Domestic consumption as a whole accounts for only about 3 per cent of power sold, and heating units, other home equipment and lights draw most of this small percentage.

Of the 400,000 horsepower generated by one power company, 150,000 horsepower is allocated to agricultural motors, 75,000 to industry, 25,000 to oil well use and the remainder, except for between 3 and 4 per cent of the whole, to commercial clients. The power consumption curve has been steadily upward during the last 10 years, annually jumping from 10 to 12 per cent. The population of the radio within the last 10 years has not had an appreciable effect on the curve.

It happens, however, that the 3 per cent of power consumed domestically, is used by about 35 per cent of the population which offers the power companies a good opportunity for public service that will be appreciated by many. It also happens frequently that complaints of radio listeners lead to the finding of leaks on transmission lines which waste a good deal of power, and when this is true, mutual advantages result from repairing the leaks.

As summer static replaces winter clarity, power company crews will be cooperating with listeners' clubs in finding and remedying defective equipment along their own lines and even in private homes in the interest of better radio reception and more efficient power transmission and consumption.

GOVERNOR GRANTS FIRST PARDON AND DENIES 15 OTHERS

Application of August Dalum, Convicted in Outagamie-co, Refused

Madison—(P)—The first absolute pardon granted since he took office was announced Saturday by Gov. Walter J. Kohler, who gave such freedom to Samuel G. Hurst, convicted of larceny in Buffalo-co a year ago.

At the same time, the governor announced denial of 15 pardon applications, restoration of civil rights to two persons and denial of such act to one.

Stuart Halbersleben—convicted in superior court, Dane-co, of burglary in the night time. Sentenced Oct. 29, 1925, to one to eight years in state prison.

Civil rights were restored to: Ralph Knos—convicted in superior court, Douglas-co, of operating an automobile without consent of the owner. Sentenced Nov. 13, 1920, to 3 years in state prison. Sentence expired May 13, 1923.

Carl Fisher—convicted in circuit court, Marathon-co, of violation of probation and forgery. Sentenced Sept. 4, 1926, to one to seven years in the state prison. Sentence not expired.

Joseph A. Grosso—convicted in circuit court, Jefferson-co, of forgery. Sentenced Sept. 9, 1926, to one to 3 years in state prison. Sentence expired March 9, 1929.

Restoration of civil rights was denied:

SHERIFF SEEKS MAN ON NON-SUPPORT COUNT

Cards were mailed out this week by Sheriff Fred W. Giese to sheriff and police departments throughout the state asking for help in locating Joseph Duprey, who is wanted here on a charge of non-support. Duprey is charged with failure to support his wife and infant child. The cards contain a picture of Duprey, who is about six feet tall, weighs 180 pounds and has dark hair and gray eyes. He has a long scar on his right arm from the elbow to the shoulder and on his left arm are tattooed an American eagle and the initials, "J. D."

At the same time, the governor announced denial of 15 pardon applications, restoration of civil rights to two persons and denial of such act to one.

SCIENTIST URGES STUDY OF MECHANISM OF BRAIN

London—(P)—Sir Arthur Keith, famous scientist, believes that government would do well to employ more men in examining brains and fewer in building warships.

"The government of Russia," said Sir Arthur in a lecture at the royal college of surgeons, "is spending as much on the examination of Lenin's brain as would be needed to equip a battleship."

The comparative value of the human brains, he said, is not to be fairly estimated by its size and shape, but by the quality and variety of its daily accomplishments. While some geniuses have large brains, there are many exceptions; of these Sir Arthur believed the most remarkable was that of Anatole France, whose brain weighed only 36 ounces, or 18 ounces short of the allowance usually given to

EXTRA HANDS care for your new Armstrong Floors

Leisure is yours — if you will take it. Just install Armstrong Floors in your home — these are new floors with the lacquer surface produced by the Accolac Process. Then you may forget that you ever had to wash or scrub. A few minutes each morning is enough to keep these modern linoleum floors spick-and-span, looking like new.

But easy housekeeping is just one of their virtues. There's beauty to begin with, the latest in fashionable floors — our spring display of Armstrong's Linoleum will quickly show you that.

And wear — for a lifetime. They're quiet and foot-comforting, too. Nor will they overtax your budget, for the price range is generous. Why not tell us the size of your room and let us estimate?

ASSEMBLY PASSES DRY LAW REPEAL WITH GREAT SPEED

House Committee Authorized to Probe Conduct of Racine Judge

Madison—(P)—More speed than is usually accorded legislation on which there is such deeprooted difference of opinion, was given by the Assembly this week to repeal of the state prohibition enforcement law.

That body on Wednesday, by a vote of 56 to 33 passed and forwarded to the Senate the Grobbschmidt bill which abolishes the state prohibition department, and wipes out all state effort toward enforcing the Volstead act.

A similar desire for speed was evidenced by the Senate, which sent the Assembly measure direct to the joint committee on finance. That committee, which was scheduled to report on the measure on Friday, April 26, has now reported that it will be heard by the finance committee April 26. It is by Senator Walter Polakowski, and was originally put aside by the Conservatives in favor of their own bill.

Two additional investigations were voted by the legislature during the week. The Assembly judiciary committee was authorized to inquire into the official conduct of Circuit Judge E. B. Belden, of Racine, against whom charges of irregularity have been preferred. The Senate, meantime, chose a special committee to determine whether undue influence has been exerted by manufacturers of "black top" road material in behalf of Sen. Walter S. Goodland's bill calling for reorganization of the state highway commission.

PEACE IS DISRUPTED
The atmosphere of peace and amity which accompanied the highway bill through the senate is thus disrupted. That body approved the measure 30 to 2 on the same day it unanimously passed the budget director bill.

Trouble is ahead for the measure in the Assembly. Its highway committee Thursday voted 5 to 1 to recommend that the lower house reject it. The main point of controversy has arisen over the question of retaining the state geologist and the dean of the engineering college as ex-officio members of the new commission.

Goodland sought in the senate to have them retained, but an amendment by Sen. M. B. Daggett, eliminating the two ex-officio members, was adopted.

The investigation of Judge Belden's conduct had its origin in opposition on the part of organized labor in Kenosha to Senator Conrad Shearer's bill to allow Kenosha county to spend $10,000 for a grand jury inquiry into disorders which have accompanied the year-old strike of knitters of the Allen-A company.

Supplementary charges were filed by James M. Kueny, a county supervisor and member of the general strike committee, including one that Judge Belden borrowed $20,000 from the Simmons Company, and never repaid the loan, later presiding over a case in which the company was vitally interested.

If the judiciary committee decided these charges are well grounded, it has authority to recommend to the Assembly impeachment of Judge Belden. If that body should vote for impeachment, the judge would be tried by the Senate.

The assembly refused to penalize sellers and user of butter substitutes. It rejected the Loomis bill which would have placed a license fee on oleomargarine. The measure asked that oleomargarine manufacturers pay $1,000 fee; wholesalers $500; retailers $100, hotels and restaurants $50, and boarding houses $10.

APPROVE FARM BILL
Agricultural relief by the state was given preliminary approval when the Senate ordered engrossed the "McNary-Haugen" bill of Sen. John C. Schuman. It calls for a state farm board to handle dairy surpluses, and embodies the equalization fee of farm relief. By a vote of 17 to 12 the Senate refused to reject the bill. The vote was a surprise to the body itself, because most of the senators refused even to sit in their seats during the debate on the measure.

Another surprise vote came on Assemblyman Hanson's bill to allow town boards to take over abandoned telephone lines. Earlier in the week the Senate refused to reject the measure, but on Thursday voted to postpone it indefinitely.

Senator Duncan succeeded in pushing through the senate his bill prohibiting "Yellow dog contracts," under which an employee is required to agree that he will not join a labor union. The measure was expanded to make any contract under which a farmer agrees not to join a co-operative marketing organization.

The perennial battle on the part of Marquette University law students to obtain the privilege of practicing law without taking a state bar examination, appeared in the Assembly, and will be renewed next week. Wisconsin law school students are exempt from taking such examination, and the same privilege is sought for those who graduate from Marquette.

Gambling on the ability of greyhounds to overtake an electric rabbit was disapproved by the Assembly. Thursday night it voted by a large majority to strengthen the laws against gambling so that the "contribution and refund system" of betting at the dog track in Waukesha county would be prohibited.

Members of the Wilson Junior high school band will hold a party in the school gymnasium next Tuesday afternoon. Miss Hester Hurley will be in charge of refreshments, and other arrangements will be made by Director S. C. Moore. Miss Ruth Riesenweber, Melvin Pope and Miss Anita Luedke.

BEER TAX IS BIG BAVARIAN ISSUE

Monarchism Is No Longer a Vital Question Says Party Deputy

Mitteleuropa, April 22.—(P)—Franz Gerauer, Bavarian people's party deputy in the German Reichstag, believes that even in Bavaria, allegedly the paradise for royalists, the monarchist issue is a dead one. He holds that the beer tax is far more important.

"For the great majority of the Bavarian people," he told the Associated Press correspondent, "the monarchy is gone for good. I say this although I believe a monarchy to be the best form of government."

"There are two facts on which I base my conclusion that monarchism is dead. In the first place, the generation attending public school today was born during or after the war. It knows about the monarchy only through hearsay. The farther we get away from the events of 1918, the more difficult it will become to enthrone the young folk about kings and princes."

"Secondly, we Germans are a peace loving people. Though a large part of my Bavarian fellow citizens are monarchists at heart, they also know that any attempt to restore the monarchy would be accomplished by bloodshed and civil war. That we want to avoid at all costs."

Gerauer has been mayor of his town since 1906. He owns a large

50 BADGERS ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

CLASS DRAMATIZES EVANGELINE STORY

Madison—(P)—The first time in several years, more men were named than women to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholarship fraternity, at the University of Wisconsin.

Elections made Friday chose 27 men to 23 women, with the selections made up of 39 seniors and 11 juniors.

SCHOOL GIRLS PLAY SHAKESPERIAN SCENE

THE NERISSA AND PORTIA SCENE FROM THE "MERCHANT OF VENICE"

presented before the McKinley Junior high school assembly Friday. Miss Lucille Sweet impersonated Portia, Miss Betty Rietler, Nerissa; and Miss Camille Verbrick the lady in waiting.

The play was given as a project in connection with the study of Shakespeare's play in the ninth grade English class.

These charges are well grounded, it has authority to recommend to the Assembly impeachment of Judge Belden. If that body should vote for impeachment, the judge would be tried by the Senate.

The assembly refused to penalize sellers and user of butter substitutes. It rejected the Loomis bill which would have placed a license fee on oleomargarine. The measure asked that oleomargarine manufacturers pay $1,000 fee; wholesalers $500; retailers $100, hotels and restaurants $50, and boarding houses $10.

APPROVE FARM BILL
Agricultural relief by the state was given preliminary approval when the Senate ordered engrossed the "McNary-Haugen" bill of Sen. John C. Schuman. It calls for a state farm board to handle dairy surpluses, and embodies the equalization fee of farm relief. By a vote of 17 to 12 the Senate refused to reject the bill. The vote was a surprise to the body itself, because most of the senators refused even to sit in their seats during the debate on the measure.

Another surprise vote came on Assemblyman Hanson's bill to allow town boards to take over abandoned telephone lines. Earlier in the week the Senate refused to reject the measure, but on Thursday voted to postpone it indefinitely.

Senator Duncan succeeded in pushing through the senate his bill prohibiting "Yellow dog contracts," under which an employee is required to agree that he will not join a labor union. The measure was expanded to make any contract under which a farmer agrees not to join a co-operative marketing organization.

The perennial battle on the part of Marquette University law students to obtain the privilege of practicing law without taking a state bar examination, appeared in the Assembly, and will be renewed next week. Wisconsin law school students are exempt from taking such examination, and the same privilege is sought for those who graduate from Marquette.

Gambling on the ability of greyhounds to overtake an electric rabbit was disapproved by the Assembly. Thursday night it voted by a large majority to strengthen the laws against gambling so that the "contribution and refund system" of betting at the dog track in Waukesha county would be prohibited.

Members of the Wilson Junior high school band will hold a party in the school gymnasium next Tuesday afternoon. Miss Hester Hurley will be in charge of refreshments, and other arrangements will be made by Director S. C. Moore. Miss Ruth Riesenweber, Melvin Pope and Miss Anita Luedke.

The investigation of Judge Belden's conduct had its origin in opposition on the part of organized labor in Kenosha to Senator Conrad Shearer's bill to allow Kenosha county to spend $10,000 for a grand jury inquiry into disorders which have accompanied the year-old strike of knitters of the Allen-A company.

Supplementary charges were filed by James M. Kueny, a county supervisor and member of the general strike committee, including one that Judge Belden borrowed $20,000 from the Simmons Company, and never repaid the loan, later presiding over a case in which the company was vitally interested.

If the judiciary committee decided these charges are well grounded, it has authority to recommend to the Assembly impeachment of Judge Belden. If that body should vote for impeachment, the judge would be tried by the Senate.

New York Yankees Open Mack Series With Win

WAITE HOYT TURNS BACK PHILADELPHIA IN SMART GAME, 2-1

Cissell Features in Double Steal to Win Game for White Sox

NEW YORK—The veteran Cornelius McGillicuddy returned to the Yankee stadium on Friday to find the yoke of baseball destiny waiting for him just as it was last September, when the weight crushed his aged shoulders to the earth at the most hopeful moment he had experienced in fourteen years.

The Yankees shaded the house of Mack by 2 to 1, but it required a smartly pitched four hit game by Hoyt to turn the trick.

The Hugenets totaled only five hits off the veteran Quinn, hardly enough to win with the sort of pitching to which the champions have become resigned through their years of heavy cannonading. Mack at least has the satisfaction of knowing that his opponents will not often get such tight box work as Hoyt displayed and he has twenty-one more chances to reverse last year's verdict of six victories and sixteen defeats.

Batteries—New York: Hoyt and Grabowski; Philadelphia: Quinn and Cochrane.

INDIANS RALLY AND WIN CLEVELAND, O.—The Cleveland Indians came from behind in the last three innings to snatch a 7 to 4 victory from the Detroit Tigers on Friday. The decision gave the Tribe the series, three games out of four.

Vic Sorrell, Detroit right hander, did not allow a man to reach first base in the first five innings, but weakened in the sixth and seventh and finally gave way to Prudhomme.

Except for one inning in which the Tigers reached him for three hits, as many runs, Willis Hudlin was effective.

The Indian infield hung up three more double plays, bringing their total to eleven in four games.

Batteries—Cleveland: Hudlin, Farrell and L. Sewell; Detroit: Sorrell, Prudhomme and Shea.

NATS IN FIRST WIN WASHINGTON, D. C.—After dropping the first two games of the season to the Athletics, the Washington Senators finally broke into the win column today with a 3 to 1 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

The Sox got but five hits off Marberry, including a triple and a double by Rhyne.

Batteries—Boston: Morris, Durheim and Hevin and Perry; Washington: Marberry and Tate.

CHI SOX BEAT BROWNS ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The St. Louis Browns lost their first game of the season on Friday, the Chicago White Sox taking the final of the series, 5 to 4.

The Sox were held scoreless until the eighth when Crouse and Metzler hit home runs. Metzler's blow coming with one on, to drive Coffman from the mound. Doubles by Clancy and Kamm knotted the count. Then in the ninth, Cissell and Metzler worked a double steal, Cissell coming home with the winning run.

Batteries—Chicago: Faber, McKinn, Dugan, Connolly and Crouse; St. Louis: Coffman, Stewart and Schang.

A. A. U. WRESTLING MEET NEARING END

Olympic Champion in 147 Pound Class Loses in 160 Pound Group

New York (AP)—The national A. A. U. wrestling championships were in the closing stages Saturday with Oswald Kapp, of Esthonia, an Olympic champion a somewhat disconsolate spectator on the sidelines.

Kapp, who won the 147-pound crown at Amsterdam, was eliminated in the 160-pound class of the national tourney Friday night by Al Cornsweat, captain of last year's Brown university football team.

Cornsweat could not gain a victory by a fall but he held the upper hand through most of the slow bout and won by decision.

Two Oklahoma boys furnished most of the thrills in the preliminary bouts. Arlie Tomlinson, a clever 147-pounder from Oklahoma A. and M., advanced to the semifinals by throwing N. Der Marboresian of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Phil Hart, of New York, former national intercollegiate titleholder.

George Campbell, of Sands Point, Okla., a former Oklahoma A. and M. star, reached the semi-finals in both the 118- and 126-pound divisions. He whipped Cyril Mitchell, of Portland, Ore., in the 118-pound class and Sam Cox, of New York, in the 126-pound division, both of his victories coming by falls.

SALO GRABS SECOND IN BUNION DERBY

Brazil, Ind. (AP)—Johnny Salo's threat to grab second place in the bunion derby was the center of attraction Saturday in the 24 mile run of C. C. Pyle's transcontinental foot racers to Marshall, Ill.

By winning four consecutive laps the Passale, N. J., policeman came within 25 minutes of Ed. Gardner, Seattle, Washington, Negro who is second in elapsed time. Gardner, hampered by a painful leg ran eighth in the race from Indianapolis to Fred.

Pete Gavuzzi, the bearded Italian from Southampton, England holds a lead of almost four hours over Gardner. Friday Gavuzzi kept step with Salo until the end of the day's run near.

San Diego, Cal.—Long Tom Hawkins, San Diego and Bearcat Wright, Omaha, drew, (10).

Four Horsemen of the Chicago Cubs

Notre Dame had a backfield a few years ago that was entitled the "Four Horsemen" and it lived up to its name against rival football teams. The Chicago Cubs have a quartet they term in the same manner this season and it should live up to its name in the baseball world as well as Knute Rockne's famous backfield did in football. It is shown here, reading left to right—Kiki

Cuyler, Rogers Hornsby, Hack Wilson and Riggs Stephenson. And a little watching of their batting this season will explain why they are called "Four Horsemen."

Can't Predict Outcome Of Major Races Now

BY JOHN B. FOSTER

NEW YORK—Although it will be a fortnight before the first series of home-and-home games between the eastern and western clubs of the major baseball league is finished and yet too early to make any predictions of how the clubs will stand, a basis of comparison can be established by reviewing what the clubs did last year.

This year, as a matter of fact, the only certain thing about the first series seems to be that there will be some competition all along the line. This is in strict accord with the predictions made over since early training camp days. One fact that cannot be reckoned on is the weather.

The east at present is enjoying its quota of inclement squalls and wet days.

But still, performance can be judged fairly well on last year's showing. The standing on May 3 this year may not be so astonishingly different from that of May 3 last.

New York led the National league on May 3 last year with Cincinnati second and Brooklyn third. Then came St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

On the next day the Giants defeated Cincinnati, relegating that team to third place to Brooklyn's gain.

In the American league New York was first, then came Cleveland, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Washington, Detroit, Boston and Chicago.

The thing to be determined between now and May 3 is the amount of variation that can be expected in the standing of the teams this year as against last.

The earlier games of April will not make or unmake a pennant winner, although they have a certain bearing on the championship. The games may give an indication of what is to be expected in the future. That, of course, depends on conditions remaining as they are. But in this game of baseball players—even star players—do get hurt and throw teams off their stride.

Last year both Chicago and Pittsburgh in the National league fought their way out of the second division because they had the skill and used it. At the end of the first home-and-home series St. Louis and New York were in the first division and St. Louis only dropped to fifth place but once. St. Louis dogged the first division teams all season and it was their everlasting determination to stick at the game that won the pennant for them by the end of the season.

At the end of the 1928 home-and-home series the Yankees had already begun to run away from their remainder of the American league teams. In fact, at that time the only sensation the American league offered was the spectacle of the Yankees loping farther and farther ahead of the rest of the pack.

The race proved too hard for Cleveland. It dropped back. Philadelphia did not show anything like the form that it did later after Connie Mack had rearranged his team and actually challenged the league leaders.

Philadelphia finished strong by increasing the pace, which was possible with the younger players Connie Mack had gathered.

To be good this year the Athletics have got to keep up the pace with which they finished last season.

THE players on the New York Yankees ball club have a reputation for the Philadelphia Athletics that amounts almost to disdain. Among themselves they say without reservation that Connie Mack's men have a willingness to curl up when the going is tough. But when they are talking for publication they say that the A's aren't even good ball players.

The ball players, especially on a champion team, are subjected to interviews by the young men on the papers in the towns through which the ball clubs travel on their way north from the southern training bases and the Babe, without need of explanation, is the first subject for the interviewers who are sent to work on the Yankee club.

The high esteem in which the Babe holds the Athletics was expressed in a statement he made in Atlanta.

AIN'T EVEN GOOD "The A's ain't there," he said. "They played over their heads last year and they got patted when they had to play us for the pennant. This season they will fall down to their real form and that means they will wind up in fourth place or lower. They quit too quick."

"St. Louis and Detroit are the clubs that the Yankees think most of. Harris will make the Tigers better and they are improved. St. Louis was hustling and fighting all last season and they'll be up there this year."

TWO GOOD OPINIONS "The Babe was one of the witnesses at the Sharkey-Strubling fight in Miami Beach and he was asked in many towns enroute from St. Petersburg to New York about his opinion of the fight. And he had one stock answer."

"Terrible," he said. "That guy Strubling is afraid of being hit."

Max Carey, one of the Brooklyn ball players, was also asked about his opinion of the Miami Beach fight. And he gave an answer that should win some kind of a prize.

"Strubling is a great boy," he said. "And I feel confident that if he hadn't been hurt he would have pummeled Sharkey all over the ring."

INCOME TAX, TOO "The Babe has been talked to so much that he is getting a talent for wise-cracking answers."

One of the scribes asked him down south if Lefty Grove, regarded as one of the greatest pitchers in baseball, ever worried him.

"Follows; they all worry you sometimes," the Babe answered. "You've got a landlord, haven't you?"

BRANDTS FORDS TO OPEN HOME SEASON WITH KIM-CHUTERS

Meet Papermakers on Local Diamond May 12; Start Season at Menasha

Appleton baseball club of the Fox River valley league will open its home season on May 12 with Kimchutters furnishing the opposition, according to the valley league schedule as adopted by the magnates a week ago at the final league meetings.

The Fords will open the league season at Menasha on May 5.

The schedule as made out so far calls for fourteen games although the season's card calls for 21. Under an agreement of the league moguls each team will play a home and home series, the third game to be played in the city which drew the largest crowd. If Appleton fans want to see their team a few more times than called for on the schedule they will have to pack Brandt park every Sunday.

As far as holiday dates are concerned Appleton doesn't appear to have any. However, if there is a celebration here on July 4, chances are the Fond du Lac game which is scheduled for Fondy that day will be played in Appleton.

Homes dates of the Appleton club are as follows:

May 12—Kimchutters here.

May 26—Fondy here.

May 30—Green Bay here.

June 3—Wisconsin Rapids here.

June 16—Neenah here.

June 30—Marquette here.

July 14—Kaukauna here.

GIANTS POUND OUT WIN OVER PHILLIES

Chick Hafey Gets Two Home Runs and Cardinals Beat Reds, 9-4

Philadelphia, Penn. — The Giants pounded the Phillies for the second successive time to take a 14 to 5 victory Friday. The heavy hitting of the New Yorkers was the only feature of the game. They hammered out twenty hits off Roy Elliott and Collins starting off with seven runs in the opening inning. Jimmy Walsh contributed a home to this onslaught. The Phils got three runs in their half of the first, added another on Cy Williams' homer in the sixth and one more in the seventh.

The game was marred somewhat by a near battle in the Giants dugout. Don Hurst, Philadelphia first baseman, went after Harry Kelly on the bench. They were pulled apart and Hurst was banished from the game.

Batteries—New York: Fitzsimmons, Mays and O'Farrell; Philadelphia: Roy, Elliot, Collins and Lerman.

HAFEY GETS 2 HOMERS

Cincinnati—Hafey's two home runs featured Friday's game here in which the Cardinals defeated the Reds 9 to 4. The first of the circuit blows came in the sixth with none on and was driven over the scoreboard in left center, the first time the feat ever was accomplished. The second was in the ninth with one on base.

Both teams fielded raggedly and received poor pitching. Pittner starred at bat for the Reds with three singles. Ford, leading fielding shortstop last year, made two errors.

Batteries—St. Louis: Doak, Hald and Wilson; Cincinnati: Kolp, Kemmer, Zahnizer and Sukeroff.

BRAVES WIN TWICE

Boston — The Braves celebrated Patrie's day by riding rough shod over the Brooklyn Robins in morning and afternoon games. The morning decision was taken by 6 to 5.

Some 20,000 fans saw, the afternoon contest in which Ed Brandt held the Robins to three hits. The Braves won by 5 to 1.

Batteries—Boston: Ilegans, Jones and Collins and Spohrer; Brooklyn: Mcweeney, Elliott, Pattison and De Clark.

Brooklyn: Vance, Dudley and Hedline.

FLIES FROM EAST TO BOUT AT LA CROSSE

La Crosse (AP)—Herman Perlack, Kalamazoo, Mich., outpointed Harry Glick, Green Bay, Philadelphia, lightweight, in a 10 round here Friday night. Brown, who substituted for Billy Petrolie, Fargo, N. D., rushed to Chicago by plane and from Chicago here by train.

valley. The I.N. S. boys particularly desire games with Appleton, Kaukauna and other near by towns. Any one desiring a game write or call the Rev. F. J. Skell for dates.

It's Sad Sam Jones

In being optimistic over their chances in the American League race this season, the Washington Senators are counting on getting the veteran Sam Jones.

The veteran Sam Jones, this season's best won and lost records in the circuit in 1928 and hopes for another big season this summer. He won 17 and lost 7 in 1928.

WALL STREET NOW REGARDED AS OLD, RESPECTABLE DOG

Even Congress Joins Battle to Protect "Wolf" from Federal Board

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
New York — The "Wolf of Wall Street" is now as respectable as an old sheep dog. He sleeps in the parlor, has a collar with the family coat-of-arms on it, and can dig up all the peonies and bury bones in the front yard if he wants to.

The Reid resolution in congress for the investigation of the federal reserve board is the first instance in American history in which the country at large through its congressmen has gone to the aid of stock speculation. With Representative Reid of Illinois, Strong of Kansas and Wingo of Arkansas sponsoring the resolution, the fanged monster from a domain whence only curses used to come, Robert L. Owen, former United States senator from Oklahoma, who led the fight for the passage of the federal act, now takes the brokers' end of the argument with the board.

Even before the abortive Populist uprising in these states, the wolf, even without outcry against the wolf of Wall Street carried farther than a prize-winning hog call and got more votes than any other issue or alarm. But now that the wolf is just old sheep—muddy and full of cockle burrs—but privileged—they've gotta stop kickin' our dog around.

Wall Street itself finds a simple and plausible explanation for all this. "The first New York stock trading session was held in 1592 at 65 Wall-st, under a buttonwood tree. In a little less than a century and a half, the buttonwood tree has spread its branches over the entire country. In 1926, sales on the stock exchange were 492,103,000 shares. In 1928 they were 919,146,800 shares. During the last few years, communications have been sent up to a point where the entire country can maintain continuous and instantaneous contact with the tape and thus, mechanical facilities alone have contributed greatly to the fact that public participation throughout the nation increased more than 50 per cent during 1928.

"PUBLIC SITTING IN"
The total market value of all listed securities on the New York exchange is now about $100,000,000,000. In 1900, the national wealth of the country was $85,000,000,000. It is now about $250,000,000,000. This proportion of the value of listed securities to national wealth, combined with the fact that security holders have increased from 4,000,000 to possibly 15,000,000 in the last 15 years, is sufficient in itself to prove that the public is "sitting in." Away out to the end of the national pike, humble and obscure citizens are making six straight passes and shouting, "Let her ride." The congressmen lend an ear.

The Congressman, Charles Lindbergh, father of the flying colonel, made a strange pronouncement in terms of congress, in opposing the passage of the federal reserve act. A lonely and tragic figure, an outcast in congress, and always playing a lone hand, he fought desperately and hopelessly against the new legislation. He wrote a book, now buried under thick layers of dust in the congressional library, in which he predicted that the provisions of the control of credit would be ineffective, he predicted that within ten years of operation under the act, there would be undramatic and incalculable inflation and a vast enrichment of banks; he predicted that in any critical situation the board would be overriden and ignored by financial interests, and that it would eventually be opposed by the very men who were advocating the act.

So far as the national psychology is concerned, there is nothing new in the present situation but various new factors, including communications and a huge money surplus, have carried inflation to an unprecedented extreme. The public always has been eager to seize the dice, in spite of its pious abhorrence of speculation. The Klondike boom of 1897 was typical of this. At fairly regular intervals in the following years there have been similar flare-ups of speculative fever. There was the mining stock mania of 1906, and the subsequent panic; the oil boom of 1911 and the Florida real estate boom of 1925 and 1926. This last big bulge is the first which has been carried, apparently, to the point of official rationalization and validation.

TRADE MAGAZINE TAKES PAPER ON-DRYER FELTS

A paper on Asbestos Dryer Felt which G. L. Chamberlin, 543 N. Durkeest, read before a convention of papermill superintendents in the south recently is to be printed in full in a future issue of The Paper Mill, an eastern trade publication. Mr. Chamberlin was notified Friday. The paper has been presented before other papermill conventions and deals with methods of drying paper on paper machines.

AIMS AT PROFESSORS IN PROPOSED PROBE

Madison —(P)— Investigation of the activity of professors in the state university and the normal in the legislative committee hearings and other legislative action may be investigated by the legislative or the assembly.
Frank Prescott, Milwaukee, "tired of the interference in legislation of the part of some of these men," has announced he will draft a resolution for the investigation.
In debate of the alum bill, he heard the reports of proponents and opponents of the theories of the university scientists on healthfulness of baking powder. He said the university was exerting influence against the Marquette law school bill, or the measure allowing law school graduates of Milwaukee the same basis for entry to the bar as Wisconsin graduates enjoy.
Prescott said he resented the act of any state department or division "attempting to dictate to the legislature," and said he would draft a resolution calling President Glenn Frank of the state school to account for the appearances of the professors and others and the legality of this situation.

ROUND UP, by Ring W. Lardner

Charles Scribner's Sons.
A book of short stories is seldom a "best-seller." Books of short stories, as a rule, sell poorly. The reason for this is fairly obvious. When any one buys a book, he wants it to be one that he can read steadily, with equal or increasing interest to the end of it. He wants it to have unity. But a book of short stories can have little unity. It is necessarily disconnected. Recently H. G. Wells published a large volume of his collected stories. The only unity this book has is the personality of Wells himself. Many readers who admire John Galsworthy will remember his "Caravan," a good-sized book, containing all the best short stories that he ever wrote. They will remember his attempt to give his book a plan and continuity by a certain odd arrangement of the stories was not successful except for those dyed-in-the-wool Galsworthy fans and who would read straight through any kind of a volume with Galsworthy's name attached to it.

When the average reader wants to enjoy a short story, he turns to a magazine. It is seldom that he goes to read several stories by the same author at one time for they are likely to lack variety. To buy a book of stories by one author for the sake of one story that he may want to read seems an extravagance. For these and other reasons a book of short stories seldom reaches a large public.

Ring W. Lardner's "Round Up," a collection of thirty-five of his best short stories written during the last few years, will probably be one of the most widely read book of short stories published during this decade. The Literary Guild has chosen it as the April selection for the Guild's 75,000 members.

In explaining why the heard of Lardner's "Round Up" these "Round Up," Carl Doran said: "Round Up" is the most characteristically, completely, unmistakably American book so far presented to the members of the Literary Guild. No more truly a native product of a native art can be found in even the sports of the comic strip, or in the works of Mark Twain." Mr. Van Doren goes on to say that Lardner "is still as accurate as a dictaphone in reproducing the language spoken by the majority of Americans. He still catches all the turns of thought of persons who do not really think, and the turns of feelings of persons who feel precisely as their friends and neighbors feel."

He thinks that Mr. Lardner also has an unusual gift of insight. He thinks that he is not only extremely funny; he is "extremely penetrating as well." "Up to the present Mr. Lardner has had two rather distinct audiences: a large popular audience which read him chiefly for his comedy, and a small sophisticated one which read him for his insight. It is time for these two audiences to meet on common ground and to realize that their author has given them a book which is funny without being trivial and original without being esoteric."

Mr. Lardner, who was born in Niles, Michigan, in 1885, was intended by his mother for the ministry. One would never guess it from his stories. He actually studied for two years to be an engineer. He left the Armour Institute of Technology for newspaper work on Chicago and other midwestern newspapers. He became widely known as a sports writer with a unique style. Such stories as "Champion," "A Caddy's Diary," and "Horsehoes" in the present volume grew out of his knowledge of boxing, golf, and baseball gained in his newspaper days.

"Horsehoes" is a typical Lardner story with a character, a substitute outfielder on the Philadelphia Athletics, that reminds one of the hero of Lardner's famous baseball story, "Your Know Me Al" stories.

It is natural to expect that stories by Ring Lardner, former sports writer, would appeal more to men than to women. Apparently the Guild did not think so, however, for certainly men are not in the majority among its subscribers. Stories like "Haitout," an account by the loquacious barber of Jim, the village cut-up, whose practical jokes are described in great detail, might hardly be expected to appeal to the gentler sex. Even a story like "The Facts," the last in the book, which is the account of an engagement which was broken off before it was announced, though it will amuse the ladies, is "a man's story." Many a man whose wife is a subscriber to the Guild will chuckle over Billy Bowen's Christmas presents for his fiancée and her family; and he will not be surprised that when the presents arrive Billy's engagement comes to a very sudden end.

Biography Of Melville Is Guild Choice

HERMAN MELVILLE, by Lewis Mumford. Harcourt, Brace and Company.

The Literary Guild, which now claims 75,000 members, has selected Lewis Mumford's new life of Herman Melville, the American novelist, as its March offering. Mr. Mumford is a young American critic. Herman Melville has a peculiar career. His romances gained him temporary fame and favor. Then for a long period he was neglected. Within the last dozen years interest in his stories has been revived, he has been re-estimated, and to-day he is ranked high among the great romancers of all time.

His life is interesting in many ways. He had an adventurous career, sailing into the South Seas as a young man and experiencing many of the exciting and romantic adventures recorded in his books. Mr. Mumford has traced the outgrowth of his works from his experiences, both outer and inner. Probably the most interesting and perhaps the most important part of this new biography is that which treats of Melville's tragic struggle with the forces, partly environmental but mostly inner, which precipitated the misfortunes that troubled many of his days.

This new biography is a work of distinction.

WATSON SUPPORTER OF FIGHT AGAINST CLEARED CHANNEL

Senate Floor Leader Thinks
Stations Can Use Same
Channels

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
Washington — The movement against the cleared channel and high-power as a means of reaching the rural listener has won over a strong supporter in "Jim" Watson, the new majority floor leader of the senate.

Concurring in the views of Chairman Ira E. Robinson, of the federal radio commission, Senator Watson thinks it is absolutely feasible for stations on opposite sides of the country to operate on the same channel without causing interference. He says he is going to discuss it some more, and that perhaps legislative steps later may be taken. That's as far as he cares to discuss it now.

Chairman Robinson is convinced that synchronization, or the simultaneous operations of more than one station on the same channel is possible to the extent that it will eliminate the cleared channel. Thus, he contends, the 40 cleared channels set aside under the Nov. 11 re-allocation against his will, may be made available to many more stations and a greater program service provided for fans, urban as well as rural. Commissioner O. E. Sykes wants to see the plan tried out, but Commissioner H. A. LaFont, the third member of the three-man commission, adheres to the engineering view that synchronization is not yet here on a practical basis. Moreover, he says, there are few complaints about the quality of reception since the re-allocation.

SEEKS ANOTHER CHANNEL

Chairman Robinson's burst of enthusiasm came when station WREC at Valparaiso, Ind., and operated by the Immanuel Lutheran church, asked for permission to operate on the cleared channel now allocated station KFI, at Los Angeles. Senator Watson, along with two members of congress from the Indiana district, appeared in support of the station's application. Valparaiso is 50 miles from Chicago.

Rev. George F. Schuler, pastor of the church, explained that his station has not been operating since the re-allocation when it was placed on daylight operation only with 500 watts of power, because the purpose of the station had been "defeated" by its inferior assignment. Now he wants to erect a 5,000 watt transmitter and use the 840 kilocycle channel assigned to a cleared channel to KFI, but also used by station WAUC, at Columbus, Ohio, until sunset at Los Angeles. KFI, said Dr. Schuler, can

WARDENS ARE SUED FOR ASSAULT, FALSE ARREST

Chippewa Falls —(P)— Charging Game Warden Edward Apel and Elmer Johnson with assault and false arrest, James Buska of Jim Falls, has instituted a damage suit for $2,500 in circuit court here.

Last July, Apel arrested Buska for fishing with a snag hook, a hook which is placed at the end of a pole, alleging it was illegal. A tussel ensued during which blows were alleged to have been struck and Apel's gun thrown into the river. Judge James Wickham, who is hearing the present case, ruled that the manner of fishing employed by Buska was not illegal.

Three weeks later, Buska charged, Apel and Johnson came to his home and arrested him without a warrant. Judge Wickham again upheld Buska and the damage suit followed. Apel and Johnson in turn are suing Buska for $500.

STATE HEALTH BOARD ISSUES CLEAN-UP PLEA

Madison —(P)— The state board of health has issued its annual spring cleanup plea, holding that these activities now being carried on in various cities "are health measures besides bettering community appearance."

These clean-up hints were offered by the Wisconsin health department. Remove rubbish from the cellar back yard and surroundings; ventilate such accumulations; ventilate damp cellars and admit sunlight to them; repair leaky roofs and defective plumbing and don't tolerate broken, dirty walls and ceilings.

don't forget the attic and places where flies breed and dust accumulates; dry sweeping and dusting are dangerous; plenty of soap, hot water and sunshine will be the best agents in a cleanup; dispose of waste paper and household rubbish regularly; outside toilets should be screened and vaults cleaned; provide proper garbage can of galvanized iron and keep it securely covered and see that garbage is disposed of regularly; rain water cisterns need occasional cleaning; don't spit on the sidewalk or in public buildings.

SPRING SHOWING

NEW CHEVROLET SIX
—a Six in the price range of the four!

You are cordially invited to visit our special display of the new Chevrolet Six—arranged in conjunction with the great nationwide Spring Showing of General Motors cars.

Here, in a price class that has hitherto been occupied exclusively by four-cylinder automobiles, you will see displayed a line of beautiful models that bring you every advantage of six-cylinder performance. Yet, due to its great array of mechanical advancements, the Chevrolet Six delivers better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline with extremely low oil consumption.

And this amazing six-cylinder performance is matched in impressiveness by the beautiful new Fisher bodies. Come in any time this week. See for yourself that no other car in the world can give you so much at prices within the reach of all.

FLIES IN MACHINERY INTERFERE WITH CLOCK

Hamden, Conn. — (P)—When the town's clock in the new memorial hall stopped this spring and its mechanism was found to be wound up, an expert was called to diagnose the trouble. He found that myriads of flies, mostly of the bluebottle variety, that had been hibernating in the clock aperture all winter had come to life in the first breath of spring. They had jammed the wheels and cogs so effectively that the hands could not move. Bushels of flies were swept out of the clock before it was started. There was no other trouble.

DISTRICT DEPUTY SPEAKS TO K. OF C. ON STUDY OF BOYS

William Sullivan of Kaukauna Is Guest of Honor at Lodge Meeting

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — William Sullivan of Kaukauna, district deputy of the Knights of Columbus lodge, was guest of honor at the meeting of the local organization held at Knights of Columbus hall Wednesday evening. Mr. Sullivan spoke on the Study of the Boy of Today and stressed especially the work of the juvenile courts. He urged consideration in punishing the wayward boy and suggested other means than the reformatory or jail, except in extreme cases. This matter will be taken up in detail at the state convention of the Knights of Columbus which will be held at Beaver Dam, Wis., May 21 and 22. At this time delegates will be instructed in regard to the discipline of the delinquent boy and the matter will be taken up by the organization at large, with the juvenile courts in the state.

AT GREEN BAY MEET
Mrs. R. J. Small attended the quarterly meeting of the National Catholic Women's council, held at Green Bay on Thursday. Mrs. Small, as a director from the New London assembly, was present at the sessions held at meetings of officials and directors and at the luncheon held at the Northland hotel.

Plans were discussed for again conducting a girls' camp at Shawano lake during the coming season. The plan was tried out two years ago and was found entirely successful. Another feature of the event was the talk of a speaker from New York, who is on her way across the country in the interests of Catholic employees engaged in various industrial pursuits. The speaker explained that her aim was to encourage better co-ordination in various organizations. Her talks are calculated to show the employee that she got out of her job just what she put into it. Many employees, it was pointed out, work by time clock rather than by conscience, believing that they are merely another cog in the industrial machine. That each is an individual with obligations reaching beyond the mechanical doing of the job at hand, is the purport of the speech.

MANAWA STORE SOLD TO GREENVILLE MAN

Special to Post-Crescent
Manawa — James Doran, proprietor of the South Side grocery store in Manawa the past two years, has sold the building and stock of merchandise to Clarence Bork of Greenville. Mr. Bork will take possession of the store May 1. Mr. Doran expects to continue making Manawa his home, but has not decided upon his future activities.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. A. Cooley of Crookston, Neb., Dr. and Mrs. V. E. Pennington of Sauk City, Williams Pennington of Madison, and Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Penn of Tomah motored here Wednesday and, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Penn of this place, left for Morris, Ill., to attend the funeral of Miss Mabel White, Miss White died at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. T. Penn, here last Saturday at the age of 62 years. She had been a Manawa resident only four months, coming here from Coal City, Ill., in December.

Workmen are constructing a cement block addition, 20 by 20 feet, at the rear of the Weisbrod meat market here. After this is completed the interior of the building will be remodeled and redecorated.

Charlie Carroll of Waupaca, has been conducting regular rehearsals of the Manawa city band the past few weeks. The first concert of the summer will be given here Wednesday evening, June 5.

The first department was called to the South Side grocery, Wednesday afternoon, where sparks from the chimney had set fire to the roof. The flames were put out with little damage.

Sales of the Bungalow store at Northport to Otto Schmidt of Royalton has been made by Lyle Haight, former Manawa resident. Mr. Schmidt took possession this week. Mr. Haight and family will continue to make their home at Northport.

BIG FALLS MAN TO FACE DRY CHARGE

Hans Peterson Bound Over to May Term of Circuit Court—Gives Bail

Special to Post-Crescent
Waupaca — Hans Peterson of Big Falls, was bound over to the May term of circuit court Friday when he appeared before Justice of the Peace S. W. Johnson to answer a charge under the state prohibition act. Bail was set at $500, and was furnished by Peterson.

Peterson was arrested by Sheriff Arthur Steenbock, Under Sheriff James O. Hansen and State Prohibition Officers Sullivan and Laabs, after they had found a glass of alleged illicit liquor in his soft drink parlor at Big Falls.

BARN EQUIPMENT MEN IN LOVE FEST

Makers and Sellers and Three States Meet to Discuss Competition

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington — Wisconsin manufacturers and sellers of barn equipment will go into a huddle with one another and with their competitors in Minnesota, Illinois, and Iowa in Chicago on May 1 in an effort to substitute fair trade for jungle competition.

This trade practice conference of the barn equipment industry will be held under the auspices of the Federal Trade Commission, with Commissioner G. S. Ferguson Jr. presiding. The purpose of trade practice conferences is to allow the trade to get together and agree on fair methods of competition. Of course, some unfair methods of competition in interstate commerce are against the law, but others which are rather destructive to industry cannot be prevented or punished by law, and the Federal Trade Commission tries to bring about more agreeable conditions by mutual agreement.

Barn equipment consists of various kinds of carriers, loading devices, stall equipment, hoes, trowels, trucks, weather vane, sleds, and milking devices.

The whole industry consists of more than twenty concerns situated principally in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Illinois.

CHURCH SCHOOL CLUB TO HAVE SPECIAL MEET

Dr. J. R. Denyes, religious work director of the Y. M. C. A., has called a special meeting of the Church School Superintendents club for Monday evening, May 6, to arrange plans for a proposed institute to be held in conjunction with the Lawrence college training course. A special committee is to be appointed to make arrangements and a report will be read at the meeting.

WISCONSIN LEAGUE TO MEET IN WATERTOWN

The thirty-first annual convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities will be held May 22, 23 and 24 at Watertown, according to a notice received this week by Mayor A. C. Ruhl. Although the common council has not authorized the attendance of any officials from this city, it is probable that several will attend.

ROAD MATERIAL IS NOT AT ISSUE, SAYS KOHLER

Madison — (AP) — Although it was announced without reference to the forthcoming discussion and possible legislative investigation of the state road materials, Gov. Kohler issued a statement Saturday that in his opinion "type of construction and kind of materials to be used are not at issue."

The statement followed introduction of resolution in the two houses of the legislature calling for investigation of the highway department, after changes had been made concerning material used.

"These will be matters for the commission to decide," said the governor, in a statement that dealt principally with his reiterated stand on a three-man full-time, salaried commission to replace the present one.

"No doubt the decision will vary according to the traffic and other conditions and the funds available."

25,000 FISHING LICENSES ISSUED

Distribution So Far Has Been Chiefly to Sporting Goods Stores

Madison — (AP) — Distribution of fishing licenses to agencies and individuals who sell them is progressing in the conservation commission offices. Approximately 25,000 have been issued to date, and this summer will be increased considerably before the trout season opens on May 1.

Licenses issued so far have gone mainly to sporting goods stores in Chicago and other large cities surrounding the state, to county clerks within the state and to the state's principal railroads. The rush of licenses to the resort will come a little later.

This year non-resident fishermen in Wisconsin will not be required to wear buttons, as they have in previous years, but every person from outside the state of Wisconsin over 16 years of age must have a license. Despite repeated warnings from the commission, "many poor sportsmen have been securing game fish this spring, which to many of them has proved to be an expensive pastime," a commission bulletin said.

Eleven men were arrested for that offense last week by Warden F. A. Siglbauer of Oconomowoc, and many more were taken in by Warden A. J. Robinson of Rhinelander and William Reabe of Horicon. The minimum fine for the offense is fifty dollars.

"If Wisconsin is to continue to have a plentiful supply of fine game fish, fishermen must learn to respect the laws. In the opinion of the conservation commission, appearing game fish in spawning beds or in streams leading to spawning beds is one of the worst offenses in the game laws," said the announcement.

Plenty of room in the NEW SUPERIOR Whippet

An important advantage of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six is "Finger-Tip Control"—one button in center of steering wheel which operates starter, lights and horn.

THE larger bodies of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six afford more spacious interiors, with extra head room, leg room and elbow room.

The beautiful and ultra-modern design of the new Superior Whippet makes it the style authority in both the Four and light Six classes. Many tasteful refinements include longer lines, higher radiator and hood, chromium-plate and sweeping one-piece full-crown fenders.

The faster speed and pick-up of the new Superior Whippet result from a higher compression engine, giving more than 20% added horsepower. Low consumption of gasoline and oil, and dependable performance, insure exceptional operating economy and minimum service costs.
